STUDENTS MAKE HITS IN PLAYLETS

Grace Yarbrough Plays Pluckily on Crutches

CLEVER COACH SHOWN

Although Date of Presentation Is Advanced, Performance Is Smooth

Distinctly creditable to Glendale high was the presentation Friday night of three one-act plays, under the direction of the class coach and instructor, Harold Brewster. It was the more noteworthy because the date of production had been advanced two weeks, cutting down by that much the time for preparation.

A distinct gain is noticeable in the behavior of these young people behind the footlights. The naturalness with which they enter into the parts assigned them, gives promise of development into real artists. The school is to be congratulated upon a department capable of such work.

The first play, "The Ghost Story" had all the sparkling humor of which its author, Booth Tarkington is capable in portraying youth, and George Jansen in the star part of "George" was exceedingly good. The supporting cast, composed of Margaret Richardson, Laura Baldwin, Kathleen Woods, Florence Hamilton, Thomas McClellan, William Justema, Jr., Harold Heacock and Alvin Brown, was excellent.

"Ever Young," by Alice Gertsenberg, a humorous bit of psychology, was also very well done by Dorothy McGinnis, Margaret Morgan, Elizabeth Higgins and Eleanor Foster.

The third play, "Op O' Me Thumb," a little English playlet, which has been screened by Mary Pickford as "Suds," came near wreckage through a gymnasium accident in which Grace Yarbrough who played the leading part of "Amanda" or "Op O' Me Thumb," severely sprained her ankle. She proved a true sport, however, and insisted upon the play being put on though she had to appear upon crutches. In this act the honors were more evenly distributed and all the players distinguished themselves. Loren Patrick, the leading and only man, as "Horace Greensmith" did a fine bit of interpretation, Beatrice Sutton as "Madame Didier" was more than good, and Alice Farrow as "Celeste," Elaine Buttrude as "Rose," and Charlotte Cavell as "Clem" deserved high praise.

It was an evening thoroughly enjoyed by an audience which more than filled the auditorium and which showed its appreciation by frequent applause.

The performance seemed to have suffered a chapter of accidents for one of the cornet players in the orchestra had come into collision with a basket ball during the afternoon which threatened to put him out of commission, but he was there "though not on crutches," as Mrs. Gibson, head of the music department explained.

No small part of the pleasure of the evening was contributed by the school orchestra which played before the curtain went up and between acts. Its program afforded opportunity to show the work the department is doing in training players for leadership, as two of the numbers were directed by students, Ivan Dow wielding the baton in "Hungarian Dance No. 2." (Brahms), and the exit march, "Flying Ace" (Zamecnik) being played under the leadership of Weldon Hanson. The opening overture, "Lustpiel" (Leker-Bela), was directed by Mrs. Gibson, and the third number was an appreciated clarinet solo by Lowry Truitt, "Allegretto from Ballet No. 1" (Faust), by Gounod.

LEAVNS APARTMENT IS BURGLARIZED

W. N Leavns, 231½ North Brand boulevard, reported to the Glendale police that his apartment was robbed between the hours of 1 and 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, and a gold watch, moonstone ring and a stickpin were taken. Nothing has since been learned of the whereabouts of the stolen articles.

ARRESTED ON WARRANT

Charged with violating the California motor vehicle law, R. B. Carpenter, Burchett street, was arrested by Officer Hollingsworth at 7:15 o'clock last night. His arrest was effected on a warrant from the Upland police department. Mr. Carpenter furnished cash bail of $25 and was released, pending his preliminary hearing.

THE WEATHER

Southern California: Tonight and Sunday, fair. Light frost in morning in interior.

Los Angeles and vicinity: Fair moderately cool weather tonight and Sunday.

Got Something to Swap for Something You Think You Need?

Roy D. King, 610 East Broadway, heads the list of Glendale swappers today. Roy has a Whirlpool washer he wants to trade. He wants a talking machine. You see, Roy's hired girl has just left and he simply must have something to take her place.

Then comes Anders & Halfhill, 246 South Brand. They swap automobiles for real estate or anything you have.

H. B. Yakel, 402 North Brand, has a 4-room house he wants to swap for vacant. Don't all speak at once.

Then talk about industrial lots. F. S. Morsman, 411 Myrtle Street, has a whole flock of them. They are located in Richmond, California, and are worth $500 each. Will take local property for all or part.

CIRCUS PARADE OPENS EVENT OF THE DAY

Tuesday Afternoon Club Send Stream of Automobiles Through Streets

The parade at 10:30 this morning opened the day's activities for the big Society Circus being given by the Tuesday Afternoon club, at the Elks' clubhouse.

There were many decorated automobiles, some using flowers, others balloons and flags. The occupants of the machines were, for the most part, those who will be in charge of the concessions at this affair and most of them were in costume. Cunning little girls will be found throughout town today, dressed as Chinese girls, selling large balloons.

A luncheon was served at noon and the concessions will be open all afternoon and evening. Dinner, cabaret performance and dancing in both ballrooms are among other interesting features for the evening.

As soon as the parade of the Society Circus had made its triumphal tour of the business section and announced that the big bazaar was on, patrons crowded into the Elks' Club so generously loaned by the Glendale Elks' lodge to the Tuesday Afternoon club for its money-making enterprise.

It was a shrewd move to make the entrance a rainbow of shifting color by placing there the balloon booth, in charge of Mrs. Guittard. The attaches of the booth were a retinue of darling children in picturesque Chinese blouses and trousers who escaped from time to time to run about the nearby thoroughfares to offer their wares to passersby, few of whom could resist.

As a special incentive, the child making the largest number of sales was promised a pair of Buster Brown shoes donated by the Buster Brown Shop.

Opposite the entrance in the main corridor dolls of all sizes and nationalities, donated by the H. S. Webb store, were displayed in the alluring guise provided by girls of Glendale High who had dressed them. Centering the table was a very beautiful French doll 27 inches tall with real hair and eyelashes.

Not far away the rainbow of color in soft pastelle shades was repeated in a wonderfully beautiful cake donated by Mrs. Bert Woodard and decorated in Morning Glories of natural shape and hue compounded of frosting.

"Ye Old Book Shoppe" over which Mrs. Charles Temple, Mrs. Malvina Barker, Mrs. C. W. Houston presided in colonial costume, was another fascinating place. Serving as a stand was a billiard table which had been covered with a beautiful old Paisley shawl whose colors were repeated in the beautiful stock of decorated candles and candlesticks on sale.

The fish pond, in charge of Mrs. J. F. Hearnshaw, was stationed behind a wonderful scenic screen picturing lake and mountain, painted by Mr. Viohl of the Viohl-Baker Sign company.

At the fancy work booth in charge of members of the Music Section, a prominent place was given to a lovely beaded Georgette waist donated by the Betty-Ellen Shop in which 10 cent chances were being sold by Miss Eva Daniels.

Mrs. Colin Cable had an array of good things to eat calculated to make any man on diet weep tears of grief because he couldn't partake.

Not faraway was a lovely display of dahlias from the Dahlia Farm in Verdugo Woodlands and a fine collection of chrysanthemums and potted plants from the gardens of club members. Mrs. Plasterer was in charge of the floral attractions.

The literary section had proved its industry in a wonderful stock of aprons of which Mrs. Sawyer, the curator, was in charge.

Mrs. W. W. Hamilton was chairman of the lovely stock of handkerchiefs contributed by members who were glad to buy them back as they were so pretty.

KIWANIS TO MAKE XMAS MEMORABLE

Spirit of Christmas to Be Reflected by Tree and Chest

UNANIMOUSLY VOTED

W. L. Truitt to Have Charge of Program of Organization

The Glendale Kiwanis club will sponser the Community Christmas tree and Community Chest, according to the unanimous vote of the members at the luncheon yesterday noon at the Broadway Inn. Committees will be appointed to confer with the other organizations of the city and seek their cooperation and aid in the good work. Herman Nelson made a strong talk advising that the club enter into the spirit of Christmas in the old fashion way and that every child be remembered.

"The Community Chest" proposition seems to be the most feasible," said President Lyman P. Clark, "and I feel that we would be doing the community a real service by inaugurating the Community Chest system of giving this year. It avoids duplication, useless annoyance of business men by solicitors, and if rightly handled is the best proposition that could be used in taking care of the Christmas gift proposition." Others concurred in his opinion. The Community Chest and its workings will be elaborated upon in our Monday edition.

W. L. Truitt was in charge of the program for the club. Mr. Truitt also gave the attendance prize which was won by Dr. Ritchey. Caterer Hersel treated the club to another of his famous dinners, this time serving baked rabbit, tenderloin steaks and all the trimmings.

Louis Sentous, French consul, with headquarters in Los Angeles, was the speaker. His address was in the nature of an explanation of the workings of his government and the wonderful strides made since the war. It is worthy of duplication, and will appear in full in Monday's issue of the Daily Press. His address threw much light upon what it is possible to accomplish under the workings of a republic. A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Sentous for his coming to Glendale.

Immediately after the luncheon about thirty-two members left for Santa Barbara to attend the meeting of the club at that place, which put on a special entertainment.

100 PETITIONS TO BE CIRCULATED BY ANNEXATIONISTS

The final arrangements for the circulation of the petitions asking the Glendale council to call an election on the proposition of consolidation to Los Angeles, were made at a meeting of the Consolidation-to-Los Angeles club in the Wilson avenue Intermediate school Friday night.

It was decided to prepare 100 of these petitions and to start the circulation of them early next Monday morning. That sufficient names will be secured within a few days to bring the question to a vote is the boast of those in charge of the drive.

At the session John W. Usilton was elected permanent president of the organization. The other officers, which were elected previously, are Attorney John Everson, secretary, and John A. Logan, treasurer.

At last night's meeting talks on the matter of consolidation to Los Angeles were made by a large number of the members of the club, among which were Alex Mitchell, J. R. Grey, John W. Lawson and O. M. Newby. All of the speakers expressed themselves as being extremely optimistic as to the outcome of the Consolidation-to-Los Angeles election, which, they feel, is sure to be called.

The next meeting of this organization will be held next Thursday evening at the same school, the session starting at 7:30 o'clock.

ANNEXATION 'AS IS'

The bonded indebtedness of Los Angeles city is approximately $87,000,000. This is Los Angeles "as is."

Annexation with that city means—a proportion of that amount must be funded by Glendale. No part of the debts of Glendale now outstanding would be funded by Los Angeles. It is altogether "as is."

Glendale then would carry its own present bonded debts plus a portion of the $87,000,000 now owed by Los Angeles.

The bonded indebtedness of Los Angeles follows:

1905—Water works	$ 862,000
1907—Water works	16,911,000
1910—Electric light plant	2,800,000
1913—Water bonds	1,150,000
1914—Electric lighting	3,600,000
1919—Harbor bonds	3,320,000
1919—Sewer bonds	94,000
1919—Electric light	13,500,000
1921—Harbor	4,720,000
1921—Library	2,500,000
1922—Sewer	12,000,000
1922—Schools	17,500,000

There may be citizens of Glendale who would be perfectly ravished with the idea of paying a share of $2,500,000 for the new library in the old city of Los Angeles. Possibly there are some so dazed by the sewer discussion here that they would feel actually relieved to contribute a few thousand dollars taxes toward the $12,000,000 new sewer plant for Los Angeles, whose facilities have been promised to Glendale without contributing to the cost of building the original unit.

But with all the advantage of its own water department and quantity supply does anyone pine for the privilege of paying the $16,911,000 due on the 1907 water bonds of Los Angeles, the $862,000 due on the issue of 1905 or the $1,150,000 due since 1913?

Are there any who in the wildest moment of a perfectly good brain storm would like to imagine paying something like $5,000,000 for harbor bonds; is it going to help their condition in Glendale?

The organized propaganda here from Los Angeles spreads the hope of decreased taxes. Of what avail decreased taxes if Glendale gets so little of the total and the remainder is distributed thirty miles from home?

Through the action of the city council the taxes this year are unreasonably high—this is admitted.

But the money received from this tax levy cannot be spent outside of Glendale.

If the city council that levied that unfortunately high tax rate had been the Los Angeles city council—would any of it be spent in Glendale?

The matter of higher or lower tax rate in Glendale, the instructing of the city council what it shall and what it shall not do with the tax money, is within the control of the taxpayers of Glendale. Would the city council of Los Angeles be as amenable?

The taxpayers of Los Angeles have again and again resented the actions of their city council. Would we like to have a council that does not now satisfy its own constituency?

Los Angeles has already promised Glendale admission to its own new sewer, provided Glendale builds its own connection and helps to pay for the portion it uses of the Los Angeles construction. Glendale would pay for what it uses. No more.

If annexed, Glendale would get no more, but would be compelled to pay more.

P. E. MOTORMAN SAVES CHILD BY HEROIC STOP

Sighting Child on Track, Joe Ross Fights Two-car Momentum

By ALBERT MARPLE

The powerful two-car train of the Pacific Electric company sped like the wind around the corner of the hill just the other side of the high bridge, which lies on the route between Los Angeles and Glendale. No thought of danger was in the mind of Joe Ross, the motorman. The beauties of the scene captivated him and the wonders of the beautiful day were enthralling.

After the car had plowed its way around the curve a full view of the high bridge was secured.

Instantly Joe's eyes became riveted on something in the center of the bridge. At first he could not make out what it was, but as the train sped closer he beheld the outlines of a little childish form. Joe threw on the brakes so suddenly that the occupants of the cars were nearly thrown from their seats. The brakes ground and the wheels of the car slid along the rails as the train bore down upon the little feminine figure, which was making frantic but hopeless efforts to reach the opposite side of the bridge. Joe is an expert motorman and he managed to bring the train to a stop within a few feet of the fear-struck girl.

Her name is Mary Gibbs, and she lives at 603 Rosemont street, Los Angeles. Home was not good enough for Mary, so she decided to leave. She did not know where she wanted to go; in fact, she had no destination when she left. On several occasions she had heard of Glendale, so she headed north.

Mary's little wayward feet carried her in her flight from home out Glendale boulevard, past Echo park and on to Edendale. At that point she decided to follow the Pacific Electric tracks. Everything went well until she reached the center of high bridge—then the great, big, red monster put an end to Mary's unwarranted ramble.

Joe brought Mary to the Richardson station, from which point he telephoned the Glendale police. The girl was taken to the local police department. She refused to give her name, but said she lived in Los Angeles. Mrs. Richardson, the police matron, took the child to Central station, Los Angeles, where she was persuaded to give her address.

MATTISON JONES JOINS FIGHT ON ANNEXATION

Comes Out Squarely on the Issue as Presented Here

In a statement issued this morning to the Glendale Daily Press Attorney Mattison B. Jones came out squarely against the annexation of Glendale to Los Angeles at this time.

His statement follows:

"I am absolutely opposed to Glendale annexing to the city of Los Angeles at the present time. However, I have always favored such annexation, providing Los Angeles would adopt the borough system of government and as a result thereof, there would be formed the borough of Glendale, comprising the cities of Glendale, Burbank, Lankershim, Eagle Rock, Van Nuys, San Fernando, and the entire San Fernando Valley. It seems that Los Angeles has made little if any effort along this line.

"The borough system would give Glendale local self-government, which is so essential to her continued prosperity. If Glendale was a dead city and needed some live Los Angeles blood to run through her veins to bring her to life again, there might be some reason for annexation, but when we realize that Glendale as a city is the most prosperous city of its population in America, the question may well be asked, 'How can Glendale have greater prosperity than she has by becoming a part of the circumference of the greater city of Los Angeles and not a part of the center thereof?'

"Let Glendale care for her own bond issues and not put herself in the position to care for them and also help to pay the present bonded indebtedness of Los Angeles, now amounting to $87,000,000.

"It is to be hoped that the people of Glendale will turn out next Wednesday night so that it may be seen that the residents of this city at large are not at this time in favor of annexing to Los Angeles."

HOBBS TAKES EXCEPTION TO FERRY REPORT

Declares He Was Misquoted in the Statement to the Chamber of Commerce

FIXES THE VALUATIONS

Declares City Authorities Are Responsible for the Increased Tax Rate

Taking exception to some of the statements of the committee on taxation report to the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, regarding the valuation and tax rates of Glendale, John Hobbs, of the Los Angeles county assessor's office has sent the following communication to the Glendale Daily Press. Mr. Hobbs is a citizens of Glendale.

Gentlemen:

In a recent issue of the Press, I noticed an article giving a portion at least of a report made by Peter L. Ferry to the Chamber of Commerce, defending the city assessment of 1922, in which I am quoted as follows:

"Mr. John Hobbs of the assessor's office informs me that this city is not being discriminated against in the way of assessment and tax increase, said Mr. Ferry. The fact of the matter is that the assessment rate of Glendale has remained practically stationary for the past several years, while the rates of other cities of Southern California have been increased from time to time. It is a fact that Glendale's rate was increased more this year than some of the other cities of this section, but taken as a whole the Glendale taxes are no higher and the assessment rate no greater than in other cities in these parts. Furthermore, Mr. Hobbs states that the report that Los Angeles secured the increased assessment rate in Glendale so that the people here would be more favorable to going into that city, is entirely false, according to Mr. Hobbs. It was demonstrated to me that Glendale people at this time are paying no more than they should."

That none of my statements made to Mr. Ferry may be misconstrued, allow me to say, that if the foregoing is supposed to have been my statement to him, I have been misquoted. The office I am with has nothing to do with "rates." We do fix valuations on which the rates are based, and in my conversation with Mr. Ferry I had no idea I was talking for publication, as I leave all matters of that nature to Mr. Hopkins, the county assessor.

What Mr. Ferry really meant to convey to you was a statement I made about valuations. Prior to 1920 Glendale valuations did not vary a great deal for several years, and the increased assessed value since that time has been made in our honest endeavor to equalize values, as all valuations are made throughout the county.

The great demand for Glendale property in the past two or three years is evidenced by the city's phenomenal growth. And as it is the demand for property that influences values to a great extent, is it not logical then that the assessor keep abreast with growth of each and every portion of the county in justice to the county as a whole?

I wish to state further that the increase in values was made by the county assessor (as Mr. Ferry has stated) without discrimination and uninfluenced by the city of Los Angeles, as has been intimated. I have been a resident and property owner of Glendale for 32 years. I live here from choice, as I believe do the balance of our citizens, and as I see the growth and the added requirements of our schools as a result of this growth I see no prospect for lower rates for years to come.

In regard to our municipal taxes, I noticed a statement made by our City Manager Reeves in the same report referred to above, in which he states that the city was not responsible for the increase in the assessment rate. Now, as a matter of fact Mr. Reeves knows that our board of trustees are resonsible for the increased "rate." Whether it was necessary or not is another question. I presume what the city officials wish to convey to the public is the fact that they are in no way responsible for the increased valuation, which is correct.

My experience with assessments and taxation has convinced me that the public generally are not posted in matters pertaining to taxation, and I would suggest that when you get your tax bills you investigate your assessed value as well as the amount of the tax, and first determine where the fault lies, if you are overtaxed, before making complaints.

As has been previously called to your attention, we receive the direct benefit of over 81 per cent of the taxes collected by the county tax collector, for the city of Glendale for the fiscal year of 1922 and 1923.

JOHN HOBBS,
920 S. Central Ave., Glendale.

MAIL EARLY AND AVOID ALL REGRETS

Postmaster Jackson says Mail Early. Also, inquiry of receiving clerk concerning contents of your parcels is not prompted by idle curiosity nor impertinent inquisitiveness, but is a duty very properly required for the safety of your own as well as other patrons' property. It is the clerk's duty to ascertain the nature of the goods and to see that same is properly packed, securely tied and explicitly addressed, including sender's name and address.

HEAVYWEIGHTS CONQUER JINX AND WIN

Defeat Husky Alhambra Team by Big Score

Coach Hayhurst's heavyweight grid squad came back Friday and surprised football fans by defeating the husky Alhambra eleven, 18 to 6. Yesterday's game was the sixth and final game of the season. Out of the six the local boys lost three and tied two.

Glendale played the same brand of football with Alhambra that she used against other Central league teams, plus added punch. In yesterday's fracas the local boys approached the goal line three times and scored every time. Time after time they have reached the one yard line, in other games, and yet failed to cross because they lacked that important qualification for a winning team—punch.

In yesterday's scrap, Glendale outplayed the Alhambra warriors in every department of the game. The visitors' line was weak in one spot only, left tackle. Ryan and Stofft tore through him for large gains while West and Butts attempted to smash center and circle left end.

La Valle's block of Davids' punt gave Glendale the ball on Alhambra's twenty-five yard line shortly after the start of the game. On the second play, Ryan broke through for the first score. Butts failed to convert. In this quarter Alhambra tried to gain by the aerial route but failed except for one thirty-yard pass, Kitter to Rhodes. The quarter ended with Alhambra in possession on Glendale's thirty-yard line.

On the first play in the second period, Greminger, Alhambra half, broke through center on a fake punt and ran the thirty yards for a touchdown. Davids failed to convert. Glendale received and by straight line bucks scored on the fourth down from the one-yard line. Ryan carried the ball. Stofft failed to convert.

Ryan scored again in the third frame after Stofft's punt on his thirty-yard line was blocked and recovered by Shannon. For the remainder of the period Alhambra was in possession of the ball but failed to get within threatening distance of the goal.

Ritter, Alhambra quarter, made a desperate attempt in the final quarter to score by passing. Out of six tries two were completed, netting them 23 yards. The game ended with Alhambra in the center of the field with her backs and ends in formation for another pass.

COMMUNITY SERVICE IS PROGRESSING

Musical Program for Entire City Is Effected by Parent-Teachers

CHRISTMAS CAROL PLAN

Alex. Stewart of the Oakland Service Explains Organization

By CORINNE ORFF

The first step toward planning a musical program for the entire city of Glendale under the community service movement was effected at a meeting of representatives of the various Parent-Teacher associations and schools held Friday afternoon in the chamber of commerce auditorium, under the direction of Richardson D. White, chairman of the program committee of community service, when arrangements were made for a Christmas carol campaign. A committee composed of Mrs. Dora Gibson, Mrs. Harry McMullin, Miss E. Brenneman and Mrs. W. Q. Widdows was appointed, following a talk given by Alexander Stewart of Oakland, music organizer of the Pacific coast under the national organization of Community Service, Inc., who told of how the Christmas carol idea was being worked out in various communities. This committee was authorized to work out the Christmas carol program for Glendale.

In introducing Mr. Stewart, Don Orput, national Community Service representative, stated that the purpose of his visit to Glendale was to meet with the executive committee of the Glendale Community Service and work out some sort of a plan that might inaugurate a community-wide musical program for Glendale. Mr. Stewart stated that there was perhaps no better way to arouse community spirit than through Christmas carols and a community Christmas program. He suggested an organized system of Christmas caroling throughout the entire city by the school children, and then coming together about a community Christmas tree, which is already being planned. Supplementing this and adding a picturesque interest to the caroling, simple costumes and a pageant illustrating some of the older carols and Christmas customs, were also suggested by Mr. Stewart.

As outlined at yesterday's meeting the plans for the Christmas caroling campaign will not be limited only to the school children, but it is hoped that every church, club and organization in the city, as well as the general public will take an active part. Miss Eva Daniels was appointed as chairman of the enlistment committee, which will work as a sub-committee under the general direction of Mrs. Dora Gibson.

Mr. Orput briefly outlined the movement which is on foot, headed by the Kiwanis club, for a big community Christmas day. He stated that the Kiwanis club is asking for co-operation from every organization in the city to supplement and help them plan the entire program, part of which will be a large Christmas tree. He said that they will look to the community service organization to provide the music, which will give the real spirit of the occasion.

Mr. White explained that the community service work will have three principal divisions: 1. Athletics and play and games; 2. Music. 3. Drama. Capt. T. D. Watson is chairman of the first division, which is planning a big community party Monday night in the girls' gymnasium of the high school under the direction of Miss Roberta Winans of National Community Service, and which will be the first of a group of six meetings of the institute to be conducted here by her for training leaders for community recreation. He said: "The matter of music organization, however, has not gone so far. Out of the music division the general committee aims to work out a community chorus and community orchestra. A chairman of the music division has not yet been appointed by the general committee."

Representatives of the various Parent-Teacher associations and schools present at the meeting included Mrs. E. S. McKee, Colorado P.-T. A.; Mrs. W. F. Carroll, Doran P.-T. A.; Mrs. W. Q. Widdows, High School P.-T. A.; Miss Eva Daniels, Federation of P.-T. A.; Mrs. Harry McMullin, Columbus P.-T. A.; Mrs. Irene McReynolds, Cerritos P.-T. A.; Marie Struble, Cerritos school; Lucile Sparks, Broadway school; Mary L. Circle, Pacific school; Mrs. R. C. Horner, Intermediate P.-T. A.; Mrs. Edwin S. Dodds, Central P.-T. A.; Mrs. Dorothy L. Sullivan, Doran school; Mrs. Richard D. Hopkins, Acacia school; Mrs. L. E. Hill, Pacific P.-T. A.; Olive Taylor, Central school; Lorraine Mitchell, Columbus school; Mrs. Dora L. Gibson, high school; Dorothy Algre, Colorado school.

M. E. BROTHERS, SISTERS GATHER AT BANQUET

Three Hundred Sit Down to Feast in First Methodist Church

Last night the brotherhood and ledies of the First Methodist Church were entertained at a banquet at the church with about 300 in attendance. It was unique in that from soup to desserts the menu consisted of dehydrated foods. It was a surprise to many that foods from one to three years old could be made so delicious. Later R. E. Ringrose of the F. M. Clarke Company, explained the advantages and economics of dehydrated foods.

After the repast W. F. Tower, president of the brotherhood, took charge of the program. Sacred songs were sung by the assembly, led by Dr. Joseph Marple. Later Dr. Marple favored the audience with two solos: "Open the Gates" and "The Lord is My Shepherd," which were greatly enjoyed.

George D. McDill, president of the Federated Brotherhoods of Glendale, was introduced to announce the Federation plans for the coming year. He especially stressed the present plan for a community Thanksgiving service, November 30, at the Christian church at 10 o'clock.

Don Orput was also given time for a presentation of the "Community Movement," an attempt to meet the recreation problem. A program for young and old is being created, and all interested are asked to be present next Monday, 8 to 10 p. m., at the High School girls' gymnasium. Long Beach was cited as having made a great success of the "community movement" and people from two to ninety years of age were enthusiastic.

The last number on the program was the fine address of the new pastor, Henry I. Rasmus, D. D., L. L. D.

After a witty anecdotal introduction Dr. Rasmus took up the theme: "A Big Task." He said in part:

"I know no times bigger than the present days—the best times, the worst times—the biggest age ever lived. The poet's lines are truer today than when he wrote them:

"We are living, we are dwelling
in a grand and awful time,
"In an age on ages telling; to be living is sublime.

"Once we counted the stars by the thousands, now with the immense telescopes we count them by the million. Once we thought of a farthest star, now we think of unending constellations. Looking inward with the microscope we separate the tiniest atoms. Man, the mightiest creation, stands between the telescope and the microscope, and tries to solve his problems and perform his tasks. Bulkiness is not bigness. John Wesley and Napoleon and Paul were all small in body but gigantic in mental or spiritual power. Man is king of the universe, and the American has especially been placed at a point of vantage. The American Republic in some ways is mightier than the Roman was. Its greatest might should be in its spiritual power.

"The Methodist movement begun in England over a century ago and enlarging in America and other nations has stressed the spiritual phase of life. The various Methodist groups now number 40,000,000 souls and the world has big tasks for them to do."

Dr. Rasmus once at a beach town counted 53 fishermen on a wharf. In 33 minutes one sardine was caught. We should not waste time on shores where only minnows come. Lay great tasks for the church.

"Churches that want to be great must have the character of Jesus Christ in service and sacrifice. The church must fight but not in the spirit of the old days when heaps of slain soaked the battle field. The church of the first born now must be one of many external names but in spirit and service we must be the same. We must be belligerent only against the forces of evil. I covet the wealth of having a church full of men and women ready to serve the Master, great in the social and spiritual activity for God."

SHERWOOD SCHOOL OF MUSIC TO ORGANIZE

The Sherwood Music School of Chicago was founded twenty-five years ago by William H. Sherwood, America's greatest pianist, and has graduated more succesful concert pianists and teachers than any other music school. The extension department of this famous school was established to extend the opportunity for metropolitan conservatory training to music students who find it inconvenient to leave home to obtain it.

Although extensive work has been an important and succesive feature of university study for years, the Sherwood Music School is the only conservatory of established reputation in America to adopt this plan, following the lead in this respect of such famous European music schools as Trinity College, London, Eng., which has branches and affiliated teachers all over the world.

To carry out its plan the Sherwood Music School establishes branches in communities where the musical interest is sufficient to warrant it. Instead of sending a teacher from Chicago to take charge of such a branch, the policy of the school is to select the best local teachers and put them in charge of the work, electing them to membership on the faculty and making them affiliated teachers of the branch.

After considerable investigation the school which already maintains several branches in Los Angeles, has established a branch at 214 E. Broadway, Glendale, where pupils can get full courses in piano, pipe organ, violin, voice harmony, dancing and dramatic art.

This should be a good thing for this district, as it makes it possible for our boys and girls who are taking music seriously and who want to get metropolitan conservatory training and earn their teachers' certificates and diplomas from a high class institution of national reputation, to do so without the expense and inconvenience of leaving home.

TITUS ANNOUNCES PLANTS FOR BIG "FRUITCAKE"

The proof of the pudding is in the eating and after Hazel J. Titus had furnished the proof at a banquet given by him at the Chamber of Commerce Friday noon to broadcast among interested acquaintances a better knowledge of his plans for the establishment of a manufacturing plant, enthusiasm took the practical form of the appointment of a committee of five composed of P. J. Hayselden, George Karr, Arthur Campbell, D. H. Smith, and Roy Kent to go out and purchase a site which would rivet the industry to Glendale.

Mr. Titus explained that this will be no ordinary factory. Instead he plans to make his main building a replica of the home of Thomas Jefferson at Monticello. It will be preferably upon a hilltop and surrounded by several acres made beautiful by landscape gardening.

As his market is the world, he declares the literature which will accompany every cake sold, will give Glendale world-wide advertising, though all his mail will come addressed to "Fruitcake, Cal.," it being understood by the post office authorities that "Fruitcake" is in Glendale.

Several of the guests including Allen O. Martin, former Chief of Police of this city, are old acquaintances of Mr. Titus and gave him and his project their unqualified indorsement.

The fruit cake was naturally the center of interest in the menu and was served both as a cake and as a Christmas plum pulling. At each plate was an individual cake in its tin box container bearing the legend already familiar "The Hazen J. Titus Fruit Cake Company."

The Misses Lois and Clarice Jacobs of Whittier were the dinner and overnight guests of Miss Edna Farrington of 305 East Garfield avenue, Friday night, after which they attended the dance at the chamber of commerce auditorium given by the Misses Edna Farrington and Peggy Gibson.

SCOUT ORCHESTRA TO PLAY AT THE LIBRARY

According to Mrs. J. C. Danforth, head librarian and Scout Executive Harold Benner, all plans have been completed for tonight's stellar program at the Glendale public library as a closing recognition of the fourth annual children's book week which is held annually from November 11 to 18.

The latest addition to the already excellent program will be the famous Pasadena Boy Scout Hawaiian orchestra under the leadership of W. C. Vaughn, camp director of the Pasadena district council. This orchestra which was organized two years ago by Mr. Vaughn has become in great demand all over Southern California. They played last Thursday evening for the Father and Son banquet of the Pasadena Rotary club.

The members of the library board who will act as hosts tonight to the Boy Scouts of the Verdugo Hills district and their many friends, will be headed by Mr. T. W. Preston and Mrs. Chas. Temple. On behalf of the library, Mrs. Danforth will make the address of welcome and Charles L. Chandler, president of the local Boy Scout council will respond. Mayor Spencer Robinson will be on hand to lend his popular enthusiasm to the affair.

Organized community singing will be conducted under the leadership of Scout Golburn Danner of Troop No. 1, Glendale. Taps will be blown on the bugle by Robert M. Searle, assistant scoutmaster of Troop No. 1.

The big attraction on the evening's program, of course, will be the talk by John Steven McGroarty, the noted writer-traveler and author of the Mission Play.

All Boy Scouts and scout leaders are urged to be at the library by 7:30. The program will begin promptly at 8 o'clock and the doors will be closed as soon as all the seats are occupied. The library will be attractively decorated and many scout books, magazines, trophies, badges and insignias will be on display. The school children and their parents are also invited so long as the seats hold out.

CHILDREN ARE TO THE FRONT IN REVIVAL

Fine Song Service Last Night at Christian Church by Little Ones

GREAT TALENT SHOWN

Children Give Half Hour's Program Without a Single Error

By O. L. KILBORN

Mr. Conner of the Conner Trio, song evangelists, last night demonstrated his talents as a leader in the program put on by the children at the Glendale Christian church revival, with only 45 minutes' training. He secured a large attendance of children at the church at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon by the promise of showing them some sleight of hand tricks and explaining how they were done. This brought out an eager bunch of wide-awake youngsters who were greatly delighted at the feats of magic shown. Then Mr. Conner put them through 45 minutes of intensive training, with the result that last night's program was put on without a semblance of an error.

A stirring "yell" was the opener and then several familiar songs, with improvised wording to suit the occasion, were given, such as "Brighten the Corner," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and "Tipperary." The wording was very appropriate and telling. A "yell" was given expressing the children's love for Rev. Cole, a stirring sleigh bell song was sung with a fervor and vim that brought to easterners memories of winter days and nights, and the chorus to "Bringing in the Sheaves," was sung in Chinese. As their contribution to the program the Conners sang a beautiful old Southern melody and Mrs. Nern gave a very touching recitation, "Jack the Hero."

Rev. Cole's sermon was on "Stop, Look, Listen," and he said those three words were a condensed, boiled-down exposition of the 4th chapter of Proverbs. He warned of the dangers besetting the pathway of children today, and urged parents to use unceasing vigilance that their dear little ones be not led astray. Just as the sign at the railroad crossing means danger, just so do many Bible truths point to pitfalls awaiting old and young.

Tomorrow, Sunday, is to be the great day of the revival thus far, with a packed auditorium and gallery, great song services and two heart-searching sermons. "Your Signature," will be the subject at the morning service and "How to Please God," in the evening. Most people will be surprised to learn that there is a verse in the Bible which reads, "This is my signature," and that it was uttered by patient old Job, 2000 B. C.

ACACIA AVENUE P.-T. A. GROWS TO 238 MEMBERS

The Acacia Avenue P.-T. A. now has a membership of 238, following a membership drive staged during the past few weeks. This fact was announced at the regular association meeting held Friday afternoon at the school.

Mrs. E. B. Moore, federation president, presented the chaperonage pledge to the association and copies were given each mother to be signed. It was decided that this association should go on record as favoring the sentiment of the pledge to see that children were always chaperoned, the signing of the pledge being left to the discretion of parents.

Plans were discussed for a Christmas party and "Fathers' Nite" to be held December 15 at the school.

After the business had been taken care of, a program was presented. Miss Evangeline Quackenbush gave a beautiful violin solo. Miss Doris Forbes gave, in her usual pleasing manner, a whistling number, accompanied by Miss Faith Tarling.

PACIFIC AVE. P. T. A. FATHERS' NIGHT

The fathers of children attending the Pacific avenue school were afforded the opportunity of learning of the workings of the Parent-Teacher association at the regular "fathers' night" meeting of the Pacific avenue P. T. A., held at the school Friday night, with Mrs. Mae Rosenberg, president, in charge. The meeting, which was attended by 150 parents, was opened with the salute to the flag, led by Mrs. Harry McMullen, patriotic chairman, and the reading of the minutes by Mrs. W. N. Stamps, secretary.

The program for the evening included a piano solo by Miss Gulick, talk on "Improvement Associations" by the president of the Glendale Federation of Improvement Associations and a talk by Baroness Otilly de Ropp, who compared schools and conditions in Russia with those in America. Mrs. E. B. Moore, president of the Glendale Federation of Parent-Teacher associations, presented the subject of the chaperonage pledges, which have been worked out by the juvenile court chairman of the federation.

Miss Roberta Winans, representative of National Community Service, Inc., was present and told of the big Community party to be given in the girls' gymnasium at the high school on Monday night, and also directed several get-acquainted games. Community singing of the "P. T. A." song and also of "America" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" was led by Mr. Tuttle, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Tuttle. Musical numbers were also given by the Glendale Junior orchestra, of which Leslie Tronsier, Jr., is manager. At the close of the evening refreshments of doughnuts and coffee were served by Mrs. C. R. Colburn and her committee.

Miss Mary Circle spoke on the Christmas carol campaign which is being worked out by the Community Service committee. The next regular meeting of the Parent-Teacher association will be held the third Thursday in December, when a children's program will be given.

The fore part of the afternoon was devoted to a business meeting, following which a program was given. Mrs. R. P. Jodon and Mrs. Floyd Mercer sang a beautiful duet. Mrs. Nern of the Conner Trio gave three clever readings which were greatly appreciated. Mrs. Conner, also of the Conner Trio, gave an interesting talk. The devotionals were led by Mrs. Van Loon. Mrs. Eva Hutton is the teacher of the class and Mrs. Archer is president.

Mrs. Archer appointed a nominating committee to nominate officers for the coming year. The committee includes Mrs. Learned, Mrs. Leggett and Mrs. Creel.

The Loyal Women's "Spiel," the class paper, which is edited by Mrs. Learned, is a monthly paper and a very clever one, containing news of the class and church. This is the third year for the paper and it is a great success.

FOUR GENERATIONS ARE ENTERTAINED

Mrs. D. T. Keim and Mrs. Thomas of 342 West California avenue entertained Friday evening at a dinner party in honor of Dr. and Mrs. Beckett of Los Angeles and Mrs. Keim's daughter, Miss Della Keim who have just returned from an extended trip through the east. There were four generations of one family present. Covers were laid for fourteen guests.

At each place were cards containing a verse of Thanksgiving scripture of "praise to God, the giver of every good and perfect gift."

Plans for costuming for the play, "Women of History," by Mary Walcott Green, A. B., to be given by the members of the drama section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club as part of the program at the opening of the new clubhouse at Lexington drive and Central avenue about the first of the year, was one of the important matters discussed at a meeting of the section held Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. K. Snow, 609 North Maryland avenue, with Mrs. R. E. Chase, curator, in charge. It was decided that the section will purchase the material and make the costumes.

A review of some of the new Broadway successes was given by Mrs. R. E. Chase, who also told of the establishment in that city of the Equity Association, which is for the purpose of securing better working conditions for the professional actors and actresses. Announcement was also made of a series of plays to be given by the extension department of the University of California. Mrs. Chase read brief biographies of Moliere and also of Oscar Wilde. The first act of "The Importance of Being Earnest," by Oscar Wilde, was read by the various section members and proved quite interesting.

Those present at roll call included Mrs. W. L. Andrews, Mrs. Colin Cable, Mrs. R. E. Chase, Mrs. B. L. Cline, Mrs. Lee Childers, Mrs. H. D. Goss, Mrs. R. L. Kent, Mrs. Harry James, Mrs. C. J. Newcomb, Mrs R. K. Snow, Mrs. Charles H. Temple, Mrs. H. C. Vandewater, Mrs. Olive Barker and Mrs. A. P. Findlay. Mrs. Charles Gowan was a guest of Mrs. R. E. Chase at the section meeting.

At the close of the business session refreshments were served. Mrs. Snow was assisted as hostess by Mrs. W. L. Andrews.

HAVE YOU SEEN THIS OLD WHITE COLLIE?

A pitiful appeal for the return of an old white Collie reached the Glendale Daily Press today from Margaret E. Boal, of 1610 Rock Glen avenue. It follows:

"I, Margaret Boal, 1610 Rock Glen avenue, offer a reward for the return of white female Collie stolen November 17, between 6 and 8:30 p. m. from her home. She is an old dog—too old for new friends—too old and weak for any breeding services; killed all of her last three litters. Has had no one but myself to care for her. Is now diseased—has had mange for several months. If I have ever done the thieves any wrong in the past, I will cheerfully make any amends possible. Her mate and son is grieving for his pal and mother. It is their first separation in their lives. Anyone buying said dog will be cheated in the bargain, for she will grieve herself away soon. If anyone finding her—returning her will earn my everlasting gratitude. If stolen, so that my home will be robbed—all valuable were taken to Los Angeles some time ago when the Glendale police set free a well-known criminal to prey upon nervous women and children. She has been on the pension list some time. I am not left unprotected, for since said criminal was set free I supplied place with efficient weapons of defense. Who have I ever wronged that would make my old helpless dog suffer for it? Or make her son and pal unhappy?

"Had long white hair clipped short on her back and hips—brown spot on side and part of head brown. If stolen to sell—I hope the buyer will have the grace of heart to bring her home to me. We need each other—she is my eyes and ears, I am an old white haired woman. Unhappily,

"MARGARET BOAL."

Six Automobiles in Street Crashes

Three automobile accidents occurred in Glendale yesterday. Machines operated by W. H. Verity, 511 West Broadway, and Harvey O'Lindsay of La Crescenta, collided at the corner of San Fernando road and Central at 5:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon. No one was injured.

Viola E. Bennett, 1717 Grandview, and Mrs. Carlock, 415 Lincoln, were driving machines that met at the corner of Wilson and Kenwood at 4:30 Friday afternoon. Little damage was done.

Emma D. Rice, 431 West Maple, was piloting a machine that collided with a car driven by Mrs. Dickman of Los Angeles, the accident taking place at the corner of Central and Maple at 12:15 o'clock yesterday. The damage was slight.

Money to Loan

PICK OUT YOUR HOME
Anywhere in Southern California
I'LL HELP YOU BUY IT!
If you can spare $30 per month, ($1 per day) above your present expenses I will help you finance the purchase of a $5000 home.

By this method my clients find that they obtain lower prices from owners; they are paying their rent to themselves; they are paying several hundred dollars less interest and they are acting as their own broker and banker.

I will help finance the purchase of any property to cost from $1000 to as high as you care to go at less than 6 percent net cost to you for the use of the money needed and all services rendered. The payments you can make each month will govern the extent to which I can serve you.

CASTLE GARDEN

All who live in New York surely have seen the famous round building at the Battery. It is called the Aquarium. Visitors to New York all want to see this old landmark. How many know its history?

It was originally built as one of the main defenses in the war of 1812, and was named Fort Clinton. It was originally separated from the mainland by a stretch of water, which was filled in prior to 1850.

After the peace it became a great popular place of amusement, and was the scene of Jenny Lind's first appearance in America under P. T. Barnum.

Then it became the receiving place for immigrants, and is now the Aquarium.

TABBIES TO HAVE SHOW DAY IN GLENDALE

Annual Field Event of Cats to Be Biggest in History

Glendale's annual cat show, the third to be held in this city by the Glendale Cat club, has been scheduled for November 24 and 25, at 105 South Central avenue.

It is to be the biggest and best ever. More than one hundred entrise have already been listed and entries will remain open until next Monday morning.

Glendale has many cat fanciers who have stock of a high order, including that of the Verdugo Cattery, which has captured many championships in the past. Mrs. B. O. Holbrook, Mrs. J. R. Otey, Miss Claribel Grim of Grand View avenue, Mrs. George Mason of Verdugo Woodlands, Dr. Pearl Rittenhouse of Windsor road, Mrs. J. L. McCombre of 1530 East Broadway, and Mrs. F. H. Wallace of 1100 Campbell street.

Others will probably be in the limelight after the judges have completed their work.

The list of cat fanciers is growing among the lovers of household pets who are being restricted in their enjoyment of dogs by the rabies epidemic which the authorities are endeavoring to check.

Pussy requires less waiting upon than the average dog, and if properly trained will earn her keep as a mouser. Tom and Tabby have many qualities to recommend them and the exhibition is likely to prove highly popular.

Besides the local exhibitors mentioned, cats will be entered by the owners of well-known catteries in Los Angeles, Pasadena, Santa Monica, Santa Barbara, and other centers where the breeding of felines flourishes.

Dr. Libby Ashcroft, as usual, is general manager of the show.

RESIGNATIONS HIT ATHLETIC CIRCLES

An epidemic of resignations seems to have broken out in athletic circles at Glendale High. At a cabinet meeting held at the 6th period on Friday, David Riskin resigned as yell leader. Wood, 1470 East Wilson avenue. The devoitonal services were conducted by Mrs. Annie Sipple and were followed by the Thanksgiving program, in charge of Mrs. O. S. Palmer, who read the president's Thanksgiving proclamation.

ARE YOU UNDECIDED AS TO WHAT VARIETIES OF TREES TO PLANT?

Here Are a Few Suggestions That May Be Helpful to Those Who Are Now Beautifying Their Home Places

There are many kinds of trees that the resident of Southern California can use to beautify his property. It is indeed hard to find tree species that can excel in beauty and adaptability certain of our native varieties. It would, therefore, pay the home owner to bear this fact in mind when searching for trees for his home place.

There are native trees suitable for planting under any and all of the conditions which exist in the state, where trees will grow at all, and it is often good economy to give these "home products" due consideration.

The common live oak, Quercus agrifolia, familiar to the knowledge of all, is an excellent tree for most situations on our coastal plains.

It stands heat and cold, drought and moisture, sun and some shade, and grows into a magnificent old age.

The golden cup oak, Q. chrysolepis, is a beautiful tree native in our mountain canyons. Its foliage is a bright green, the acorns large and the cups a bright golden color.

It is suitable for planting where ample moisture is assured.

For the hot, interior valleys nothing is more lovely than the valley or white oak, Q. Lobata.

It is a tall, upright tree with a deeply lobed leaf from two to four inches long. It is deciduous, but is one of our most beautiful valley trees.

Another deciduous tree worthy of note is the California black walnut, Juglans Californica.

In the South it generally appears as a shrubby tree, but in the northern part of the state where there is more moisture it grows to enormous proportions and unexcelled beauty.

For moist places, such as canyon floors, the sycamore tree is entirely suitable.

It is picturesque and delightful whether in foilage or whether bare, and should be planted oftener. It becomes an excellent street tree where soil conditions are right.

The California laurel, or bay tree, also thrives in moist places. It is evergreen, tall-growing and compact. Its leaves have a very pungent aroma when bruised.

For planting on exposed places along our seacoast it is no more than logical to select such trees as have, by nature, proven themselves adaptable to the trying conditions there found.

Our Monterey Pines and Cypress are known to all and have been much planted. They both grow naturally on the coast.

Although both of them thrive in the south they prefer more fog and the greater rainfall of the northern part of the state, where they attain splendid maturity.

When exposed to the sea winds they assume picturesque forms and habits of growth that add to their attractiveness.

The Torrey pine seems to have chosen, as its habitat, the one spot on the coast of greatest aridity of climate and sterility of soil.

If planted in the garden it responds with very rapid growth and will attain a trunk diameter of three feet.

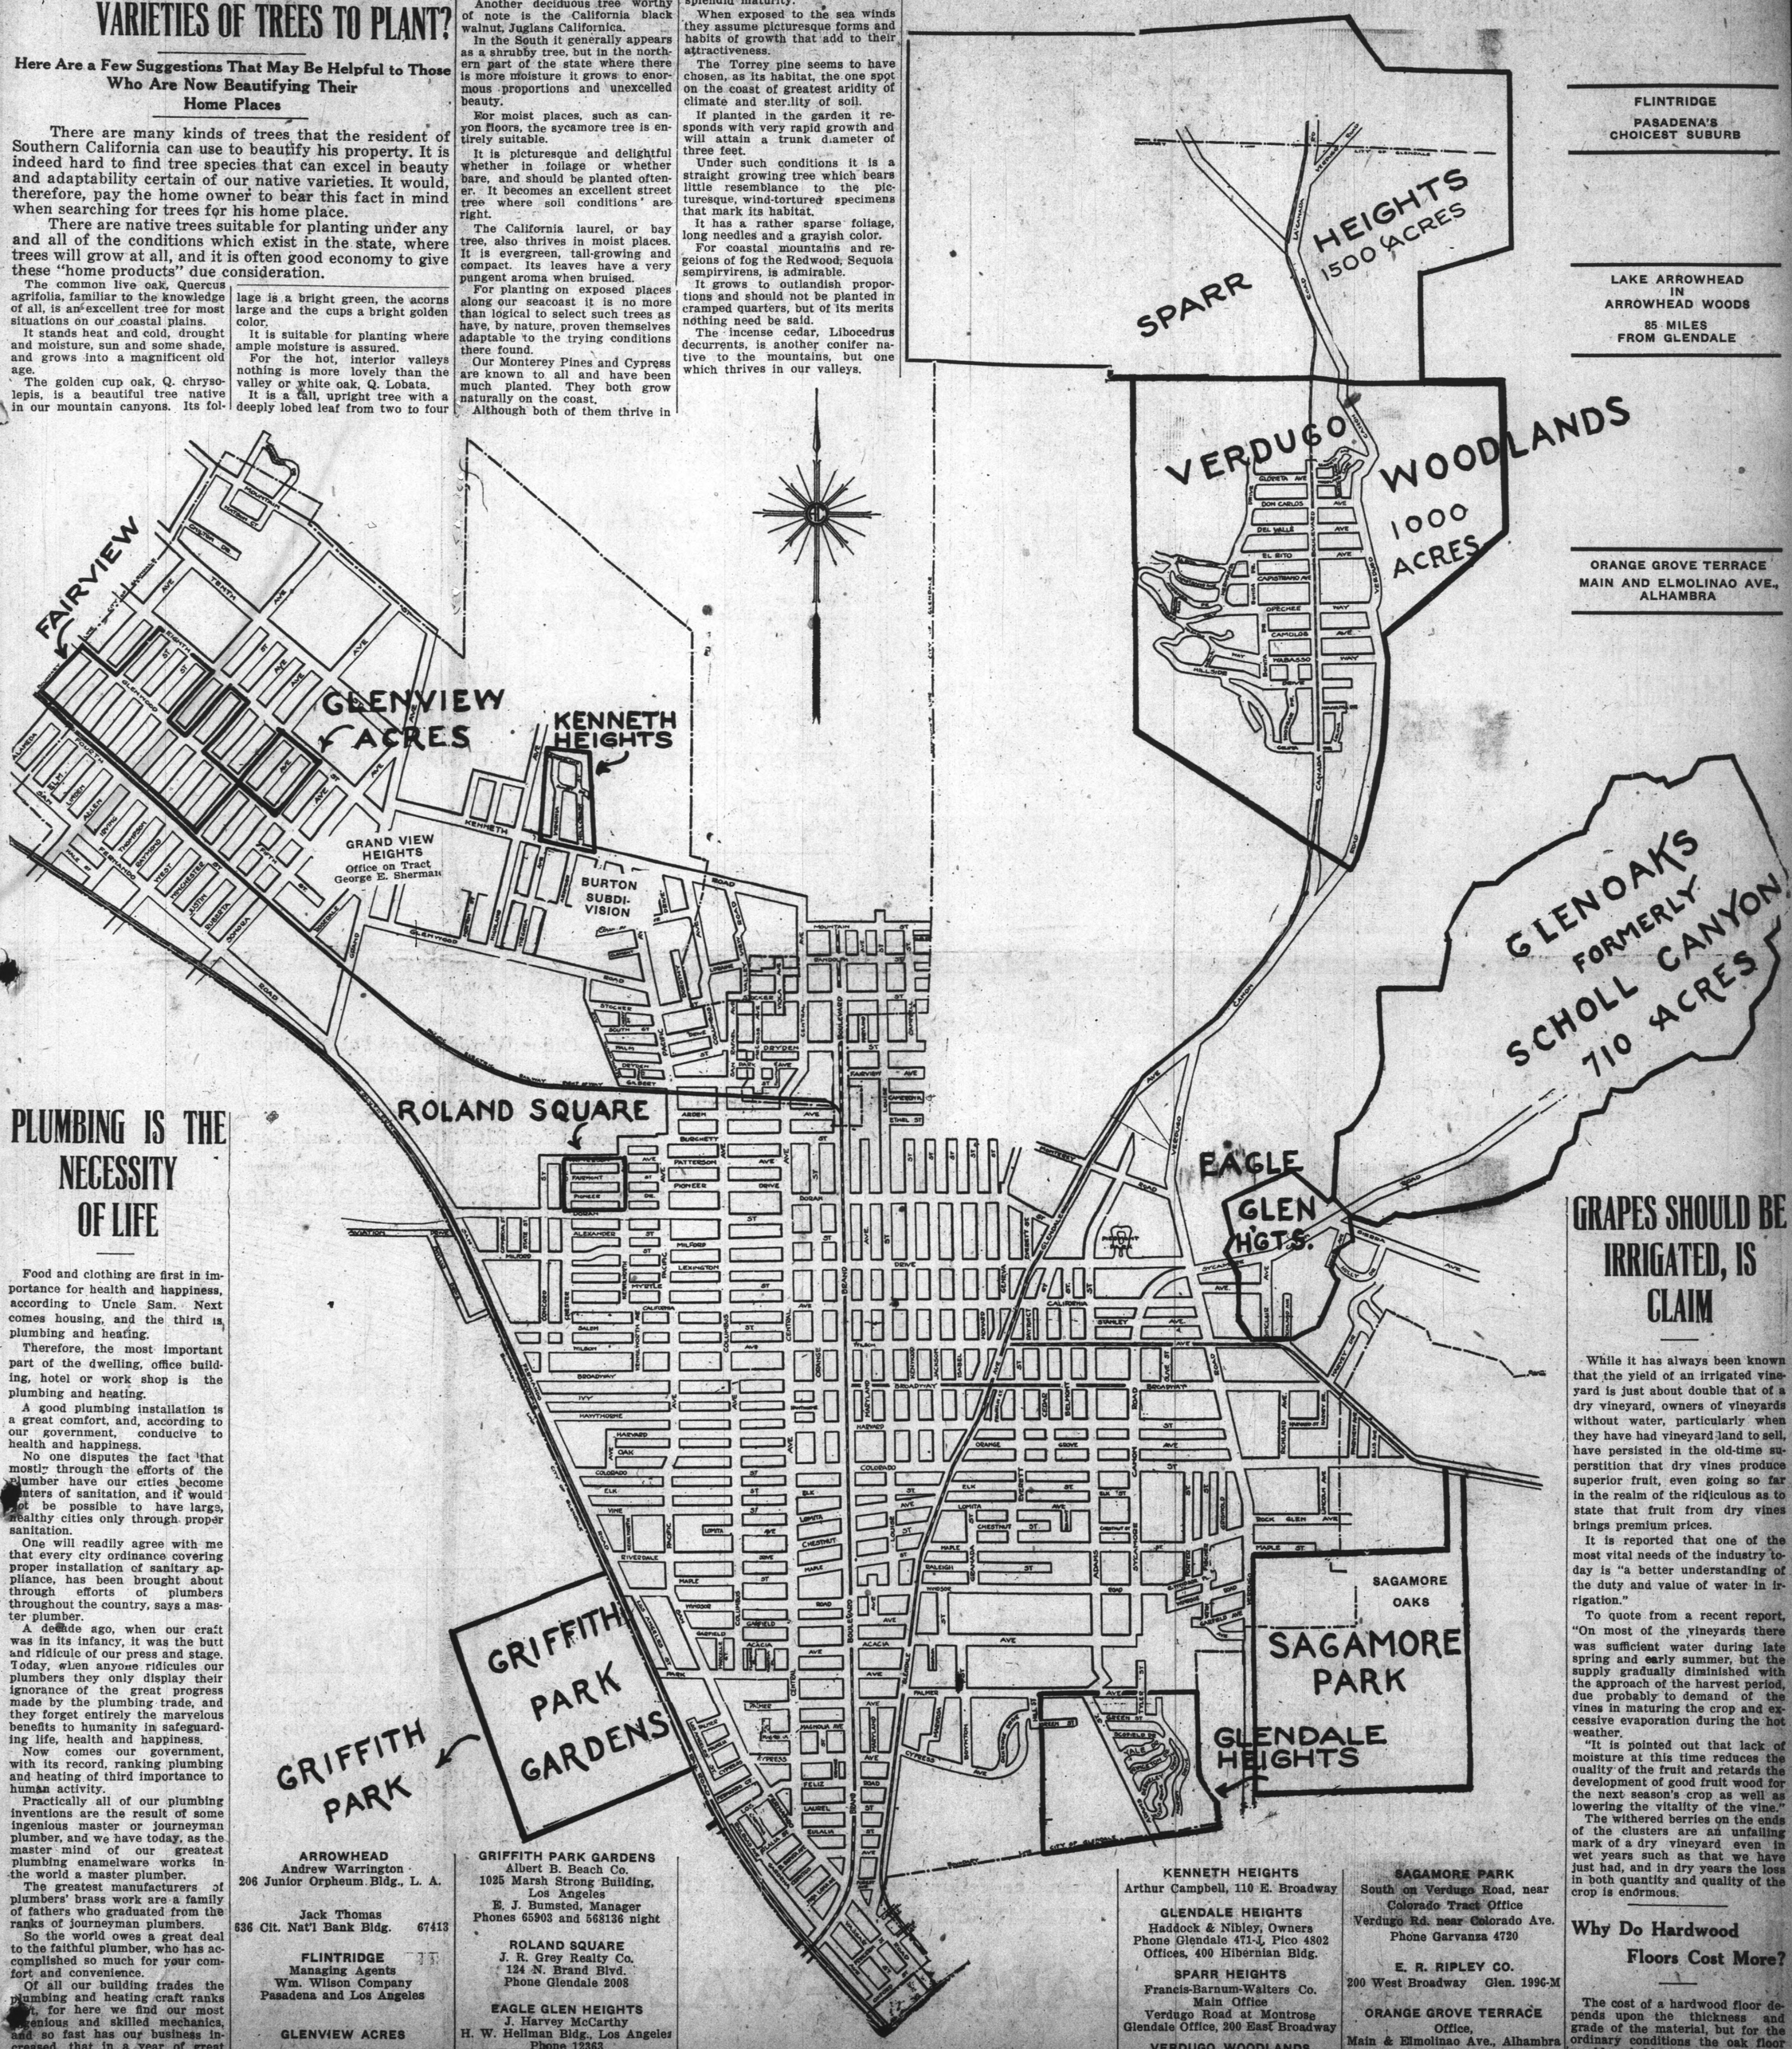
Under such conditions it is a straight growing tree which bears little resemblance to the picturesque, wind-tortured specimens that mark its habitat.

It has a rather sparse foliage, long needles and a grayish color.

For coastal mountains and regeions of fog the Redwood, Sequoia sempirvirens, is admirable.

It grows to outlandish proportions and should not be planted in cramped quarters, but of its merits nothing need be said.

The incense cedar, Libocedrus decurrents, is another conifer native to the mountains, but one which thrives in our valleys.



PLUMBING IS THE NECESSITY OF LIFE

Food and clothing are first in importance for health and happiness, according to Uncle Sam. Next comes housing, and the third is plumbing and heating.

Therefore, the most important part of the dwelling, office building, hotel or work shop is the plumbing and heating.

A good plumbing installation is a great comfort, and, according to our government, conducive to health and happiness.

No one disputes the fact that mostly through the efforts of the plumber have our cities become centers of sanitation, and it would not be possible to have large, healthy cities only through proper sanitation.

One will readily agree with me that every city ordinance covering proper installation of sanitary appliance, has been brought about through efforts of plumbers throughout the country, says a master plumber.

A decade ago, when our craft was in its infancy, it was the butt and ridicule of our press and stage. Today, when anyone ridicules our plumbers they only display their ignorance of the great progress made by the plumbing trade, and they forget entirely the marvelous benefits to humanity in safeguarding life, health and happiness.

Now comes our government, with its record, ranking plumbing and heating of third importance to human activity.

Practically all of our plumbing inventions are the result of some ingenious master or journeyman plumber, and we have today, as the master mind of our greatest plumbing enamelware works in the world a master plumber.

The greatest manufacturers of plumbers' brass work are a family of fathers who graduated from the ranks of journeyman plumbers.

So the world owes a great deal to the faithful plumber, who has accomplished so much for your comfort and convenience.

Of all our building trades the plumbing and heating craft ranks first, for here we find our most ingenious and skilled mechanics, and so fast has our business increased, that in a year of great building activity, like the present, there is an estimated shortage of 40,000 skilled plumbers and fitters in the United States.

GRAPES SHOULD BE IRRIGATED, IS CLAIM

While it has always been known that the yield of an irrigated vineyard is just about double that of a dry vineyard, owners of vineyards without water, particularly when they have had vineyard land to sell, have persisted in the old-time superstition that dry vines produce superior fruit, even going so far in the realm of the ridiculous as to state that fruit from dry vines brings premium prices.

It is reported that one of the most vital needs of the industry today is "a better understanding of the duty and value of water in irrigation."

To quote from a recent report, "On most of the vineyards there was sufficient water during late spring and early summer, but the supply gradually diminished with the approach of the harvest period, due probably to demand of the vines in maturing the crop and excessive evaporation during the hot weather.

"It is pointed out that lack of moisture at this time reduces the quality of the fruit and retards the development of good fruit wood for the next season's crop as well as lowering the vitality of the vine."

The withered berries on the ends of the clusters are an unfailing mark of a dry vineyard even in wet years such as that we have just had, and in dry years the loss in both quantity and quality of the crop is enormous.

Why Do Hardwood Floors Cost More?

The cost of a hardwood floor depends upon the thickness and grade of the material, but for the ordinary conditions the oak floor would probably cost about twice as much as the fir. Usually, the increased value more than justifies the use of hardwood floors throughout a residence.

ELEVENTH UNIT OF FAIRVIEW HALF SOLD OUT

Following the single announcement in the Glendale Daily Press of the advance sale of lots in the Eleventh Unit, over half of the lots are already sold, 12 having been sold in a single day. This in itself speaks for the popularity of the property which Hamlin & Hepburn are offering in the northwest section of Glendale, where such rapid development is taking place and where values are increasing with miraculous rapidity.

The 11th Unit borders Kenneth road, the new boulevard for which contracts have already been let, and is directly west of Allen avenue, formerly Laurel avenue, which is a main street from the floor of the valley up to the mountains.

A year ago even the most enthusiastic would hardly have predicted the enormous growth which has actually taken place in this section. Its popularity is doubtless due to its beautiful location and the reasonable prices and exceptionally low terms on which the property is offered, enabling people to get a home started with a lower investment than any other place in Glendale.

Hamlin & Hepburn have always maintained that they are rendering a distinct service to worthy people by selling on low terms and permitting temporary homes of neat construction to be built on the rear of the lot until better ones can be constructed.

Nobody yet realizes the enhancement in values which will follow the opening of Kenneth road as a paved boulevard and also Glenwood road, and the further fact that so few lots remain unsold in this beautiful section.

A NEW CESSPOOL IS MADE IN GLENDALE

The Circular Concrete Manufacturing company is the very latest manufacturing concern to make its appearance in Glendale. Its office is located at 610 East Broadway, where the very newest thing in the way of cesspool material is being exhibited.

The purpose for which this company was organized is to manufacture circular concrete cesspool slabs, which, when set in place forms a cesspool that is practically non-collapsible. It is claimed to be the strongest cesspool on the market today and it costs no more than the ordinary brick cesspool. It is claimed to be the only improvement in cesspool construction for the past several years and one which the manufacturers claim will revolutionize the business.

The members of the Circular Concrete company know the concrete business from one end to the other and they claim they are giving the people of Glendale a service that is second to none in this country.

ROBINSON JOINS WITH LIVE WIRES

Mayor Robinson, after one or two weeks spent at Thornycroft hospital, declares that if he were to remain at the hospital for one month longer, his condition would be returned to such a high state of perfection that it would have been hard to tell just what he would have attempted to try, for he is sure he would feel as fit as he did when a kid with a holiday in sight.

As it is, he has decided to open up several new departments in his real estate office, and fully intends to make it a clearing house for any and all kinds of investors and homeseekers, and to that end he has annexed the services of two live wires who will look after some of the new departments, C. D. Gulick, formerly employed by the city of Glendale as transportation expert, and Roger Hardacre, an old associate of Mr. Gulick, who has recently sold his business in San Francisco and has been attracted by the evident progressiveness of Glendale.

If you see these two (easily discernible if you keep in mind the physical attributes of Mutt and Jeff) coming your way, have your property listings where they can get them without the necessity of searching you, for they are out for blood (or, rather, good property listings). They are ready and willing to show you any of the many bargains now on file in Robinson's office, and extend to you any possible service in helping you find that home, business or bargain investment you have been looking for.

BETTER BUSINESS COMING

"We are slowly emerging from our business depression; there are many signs of it," said Prof. W. H. Cordell, head of the economic science department at the State College of Washington, addressing the Whitman County Merchants' Association at their last meeting. "The future looks hopeful, and while it will probably be some years before we reach a boom period yet the trend is progressively better."

WONDER TRACT IS SAGAMORE OAKS

Sagamore Oaks—the gentle slopes of California's most beautiful hillside property, subdivided with extreme care and thought for natural beauty. That's how the owners of this property are describing this wonderful subdivision to the lot buyers of Southern California.

These wonderful homesites are being offered to persons of taste and judgment who, it is believed, will here realize finer possibilities for home places of distinction than elsewhere in this lovely Southland.

There are less than thirty lots for sale in this tract. They are unusually large, the prices are extremely low, and they are being sold on reasonable terms. There are few tracts more desirable than Sagamore Oaks. Each lot is a jewel, which even the most exacting lot buyer would be glad to own. The main office of this tract is at Verdugo road, south of Colorado, and the tract office is at the ocrner of Colorado and Douglas avenues, Eagle Rock.

L. A. PURCHASERS ARE INVADING THE SPARR TRACT

Recognize Advantage of Buying in Rapidly Advancing District

There is nothing more indicative of the superb faith in the great future of the city of Los Angeles than the fact that its residents are interested in that future.

This is particularly true of those who live in the suburban residential districts. They have seen the sections like Glendale, Hollywood, Alhambra and others grow from mere villages into the dignity of cities over night, keeping step, as it were with the rapid growth of the metropolis of which they really are a part.

The old-time "mossbacks" have held back saying that this growth was an over inflation of values, a boom that would burst and ruin everybody. While they spent their time in predicting dire calamities, bankers, capitalists, manufacturers, captains of industry and men of vision have been pouring in in a steady stream, bringing with them millions of money to invest here. Bank clearings have risen in volume like the surge of a tide. Manufactured products have almost doubled every year in quantity and volume, foreign commerce is increasing by leaps and bounds and the world has acknowledged the fact that Los Angeles is to be one of the two largest and greatest cities in commercial importance on the globe and yet these same fossils have been patiently waiting and hoping that the time will come when they will be able to shout from the housetops: "I told you so."

Had they been listened to, Glendale and Hollywood would still be but a small cluster of homes.

It is fortunate indeed that these wise-acres are only an infinitesimal minority and that the majority of those who have lived in the vicinity of Los Angeles for a few years do not intend that outsiders shall reap all the benefits due to our phenomenal growth.

We find that most of the purchasers in Sparr Heights are those who have lived in the vicinity of Los Angeles for a number of years. They have selected this district for either one of two reasons. The first is because they realize that the ultimate congestion of Los Angeles will drive all those who desire peace and quiet to the suburbs and secondly that the opportunity for safe and profitable investment is better where one can buy in a rapidly developing section at opening prices and reap the profit that comes from the rapid rise in value resulting from the vast sums of money spent in development.

They are familiar with the scenic beauties of Sparr Heights and realize that a wealthy, cultured community of 40,000 people living in beautiful homes with an annual purchasing power of $1,600,000 will create conditions that will make an investment at Sparr Heights safe, sound and profitable.

A salesman for a card index company had succeeded in selling his elaborate system to a business firm. It was wonderful. They indexed everything from the top to the bottom of their business. If they wanted to know how many square yards of calico they sold in an hour, or the number of times the elevator boy went up and down in a day, they could find it in a minute from the cards.

A month later the salesman called and saw the manager.

"Well," he asked, "how's the index working?"

"Splendid," was the reply. "It's absolutely magnificent. We really know now what we're doing in every department."

"I'm delighted to hear that you're satisfied," said the salesman. "How's business?"

"Oh, business," said the manager, with a wave of the hand. "We haven't time for any business; we give it all to the index!"

The irate customer shook his portrait in the photographer's face.

"Do I look like this picture? The thing's an outrage. Why, you've given me an awful squint and the look of a prize-fighting bully. Now, answer me, and no nonsense about it. Do you call that a good likeness?"

The photographer scanned the print, then looked at the customer.

"The answer," he said, "is in the negative."

FRANCIS--BARNUM--WALTERS CO.

CALCIMINE FACTS ARE TOLD BY EXPERT

Calcimine is a water paint or water color. It is generally known as "tint." The base is whiting, clay, etc.

The color is mixed with the base and to the whole a glue or binder is added.

When the dry material is mixed with water the binder readily dissolves.

The evaporation of the water after the application leaves the calcimine firmly on the surface of the wall.

Calcimine is the most economical way to finish a wall. It is easy to recoat at a very small expense. It is also much easier to apply than paint.

However, calcimine has a tendency to chip or fall from the surface. Although it may be the cheapest way to color walls it is by no means the best.

The material may be obtained in most any color desired.

The surface must first be sized. Prepared wall size may be purchased for this work. Gelatine glue dissolved in water is often recommended.

A pound of good flake glue dissolved in a gallon of water will answer.

This may be done by heating the water and adding the glue or by putting the water and glue set over night. The size must not be applied heavy.

Ordinarily five pounds of calcimine mixed with one gallon of water will give good results.

However, it must be remembered that there are many kinds of water colors or calcimine. Low priced material may require eight pounds of color to a gallon of water.

Buy the best and use less.

The material should be mixed heavy at first. That is, add about half the water and beat up the paste to remove all the lumps.

Now add the balance of the water gradually and continue to stir until all the water is mixed in.

One pound of calcimine will cover about seventy-five square feet. In other words, a mixture of five pounds of color and a gallon of water will cover 375 square feet or a room 8x10 feet 9 feet high, ceiling and walls.

Use a calcimine brush of good quality eight inches wide. If a calcimine brush is not at hand use a good wide paint brush.

Water leaking through the walls of the building causes discoloration on tinted walls. Very often these stains cause the painter no end of trouble.

If these stains are bad it is a hard matter to coat them as the stains often come through the finished work.

There are a number of so-called "stain killers" on the market. Most of them are worthless.

Often a coat of aluminum paint applied before the size will keep back the stain. Some use muriatic acid, shellac or flat drying paint.

If one method does not work try the other. In any event, apply the size over the stain killer.

In recalciming always apply the size over old calcimine. If this is not done the wall will be spotted and it will take twice the work and material.

If the old work has been coated several times it may be found necessary to take off the old tint. Wash the wall with a sponge and hot water.

Although this is a very messy job it is the only thing that can be done.

Calcimine that is peeling or flaking off cannot be tinted. It is best to remove the color down to the plaster.

If there are any cracks in the plaster they can be filled by using a putty made with half plaster paris and half calcimine mixed to a stiff paste with water.

These cracks should be filled before the wall is sized.

ALHAMBRA TRACT IS HANDED BOUQUET

A gentleman, driving a large touring car, stopped at the office of the Orange Grove Terrace tract at the corner of El Molino and Main street, Alhambra, to inquire the price of the lots. Within thirty minutes he and his wife had selected one of the lots and paid cash for it.

After giving the check he said to the representative on the tract:

"I have been in California for more than five years and have been looking for a home site that is typical of California and where I can raise my children and be sure of the proper environment, still being close to Los Angeles.

"Well, I have bought here and so will anyone who wants a hundred per cent American district. You can say to the Culp Realty company that no one can criticize your Orange Grove Terrace tract from any standpoint."

NEW REAL ESTATE OFFICE IN GLENDALE

S. B. Johnson, who has been in the real estate business for the past several years, has opened an office at 536 Patterson avenue, where he will dispense real estate of all kinds to those coming to Glendale and wishing to locate here.

"I am well versed in realty values in Glendale," said Mr. Johnson, "and this coupled with unbounded faith in the future of the city makes me capable of giving the realty buyer the very highest class of service."

FILM WILL TELL HOW TO OWN HOME

The simplicity of securing and owning a home is now being shown in a motion picture that is just being made, according to a building authority.

It tells the story, step by step, of how a man with a small salary went about raising the money, getting his plans, building the house and furnishing it.

A modern small brick house is being built solely for the purpose of making this five reel film.

It is going to be a real education to see this film.

In an hour or two you can learn as much through the eye on how to solve the problems connected with building a home as from three or four days' study of technical books.

It will show how the modern brick home is put together, and how its permanence and minimum upkeep expense makes it cost less than any other type of house, as well as being the most beautiful.

Modern labor saving devices and electrical equipment of every kind known to modern science will be installed throughout the house.

The film will be shown by real estate boards and by other institutions throughout the country interested in the encouragement of home building, it is said.

CAN A POULTRY FARM BE MADE TO PAY?

Are you tired of the salary grind—tired of getting nothing but the pay check which is generally spent before it is received?

Listen to this story of a man who was at one time, in the same "salary" shoes:

"At the age of 20 I left the farm to learn the butcher business which I followed for twenty years. Seven years ago I began to feel the nervous strain of serving the public and the worry of business and long hours of hard work.

"One night I came home late and told my wife that I was going to quit the butcher business and buy a farm. I had a few thousand dollars, but I found that good land and a good location cost a lot of money.

"I finally concluded that a chicken ranch was about the only kind of farm within my means.

A prominent poultry colony was just being started. After looking the colony over it took me two hours to select my location and make a deposit on five acres of land.

"Three months from the time I bought my land I had my dwelling house, feed room, tank house, pumping plant and chicken equipment all complete for 1200 chickens.

"That is when the real interesting part started. I had my order placed for 3200 baby chicks to be delivered 1500 at a time.

"We were all like a lot of school children taking our first lesson. Every one wanted to raise a beteter percentage of chicks than his neighbor.

"We had experience meetings once a week of all the colonists.

"Each day brought forth new problems which added interest to the business. If one made a mistake he would correct it by following the advice of his neighbor who was getting on right. We organized a board of trustees and kept together on all matters of interest to the colony.

"We had our special gatherings, our business meetings and each one seemed to take an interest in the other fellow's welfare.

"These were the most interesting days of my chicken farm. I did not make any wonderful record with my chickens.

"I raised about 1100 pullets the first year and cleared better than $2.25 per hen. Many of my neighbors did better, but I was thoroughly satisfied and thought I was doing well for a beginner.

"Now this colony is six years old and many of the first settlers are here and contented. Many have sold out at handsome profits and if there have been any real failures I have not heard of them.

"I have never fallen below $2 profit per hen and, while I have had five acres. I could do all I have done on two acres.

"My plant has a capacity for 2000 laying hens, yards for all my houses, electric lights, underground irrigation pipes throughout the ranch and all necessary equipment which represents an expenditure of over $20,000, and it is not for sale. The happiest years of my life have been spent at this poultry colony."

Contractor Should Show Receipted Bills

Before you pay the contractor the payments that are due you should exact from him paid bills for all materials and signed pay rolls for the labor on your project inclusive from the date when operations were started to the rendering of the bills. You can pay these bills and feel protected, providing, however, that these bills and pay rolls do not include the 25 per cent of the total cost of the project, which is to be held for thirty days after the notice of completion is recorded in the County Recorder's office, and if the contractor refuses to show receipted bills it is advisable for you to withhold all payments until some satisfactory statement from all material houses and sub-contractors are produced, which would be in the form of material and labor releases signed by the material dealers and contractors.

ARTISTIC HOMES IN BEAUTIFUL FLINTRIDGE

Perhaps the most notable achievement in Southern California realty circles in recent years has been the transformation of Flintridge from a famous scenic park to a still more famous community of artistic homes.

Under the management of the William Wilson company of Los Angeles and Pasadena, this well known property has been transformed into one of the show place residential sections of Southern California.

The thousands of people who visited Flintridge last fall will be amazed this fall to see the result of the tremendous development activity that has been going on there this summer.

Scores of new residences have been built or are already under construction. Miles of new, winding avenues have been laid through the property. Thousands of dollars have been spent in carrying out the plans of the landscape architects who have already made Flintridge known as "Pasadena's Choicest Suburb."

Scores of people bought and built in Flintridge last season. Scores more have firmly made up their minds to buy in Flintridge when they are ready to build permanently. It is to these people that the management of the property is this season sounding a note of warning.

Although Flintridge is one of the most extensive properties in suburban Los Angeles, there is only so much Flintridge available. There never can be another Flintridge, and the indications now are that this season may see the end of the public sale of moderately-sized, moderately-priced Flintridge parcels.

The time to buy Flintridge property is now. Even though it is not practicable to commence building operations at once, delay in securing a Flintridge homesite may invite disappointment.

"Perhaps the achievement of which we are proudest," says Michael Hallward of the William Wilson company, "is the extensive roadbuilding done this summer, which has made available a particularly choice section of Flintridge heretofore inaccessible.

"This was made possible through the owner's consent to partition some of the larger Flintridge estates, for sale in smaller parcels. This has enabled us this fall to offer some of the choicest sites in the entire Flintridge area in small parcels at popular prices."

BURTON TRACT IS OPEN TO BUYERS

Burton subdivision is one of the latest pieces of property in Glendale to be offered to the lot-buying public. This is one of the few close-in pieces of property left, and the people of Glendale will doubtless welcome the announcement of the opening of this tract.

There is a limited number of lots in this subdivision, which is located at the corner of Pacific avenue and Eighth street. It is right in the middle of the close-in northwest, where property values are advancing every day and where the most desirable property to be found in Glendale is located.

"There is money in these lots," says the E. R. Ripley company, 200 West Broadway, which is putting on this tract. "We will be glad to show you how to find it. If you intend to build a home you will be wise to locate in this choice section, but you will have to act promptly. Our cars are waiting to hurry those interested out to the tract. It is less than five minutes from our office."

Truths in Epigram

There are three things in this world which deserve no quarter, hypocrisy, Pharisaism and tyranny. —Robertson.

Knowledge will ever govern ignorance, and a people who mean to be their own governors must arm thelselves with the power that knowledge gives.—Madison.

ENCOURAGING THE CRIMINAL

In a recent robbery a resident of Los Angeles was stripped of diamonds said to be worth $17,000. The jewels were in the form of two stones, one gleaming invitingly from the tie, and a larger one, worn on the finger. The profuse wearing of diamonds is a practice not readily winning approval on any ground. The possession of the gems indicates wealth, for diamonds, thanks to the shrewdness of producers, are maintained at high price. They are made valuable by an artificially created scarcity.

The right of any man to bedeck himself in expensive gauds is not to be denied while the pursuit of happiness continues to be sustained by the constitution. His taste, however, it is natural to question. Not that under ordinary circumstances, this would be anybody's business. Circumstances, as they prevail at present, are not ordinary. There are swarms of robbers. They haunt the streets and the highways. Sound public policy suggests that they be discouraged in every manner. One of the simplest methods would be to keep them from contact with alluring temptation. The man who trims himself with the lavishness that a jeweler uses in fitting up a window display, and then goes out into the night, is making a demand that he be robbed. He virtually is saying to the prowling thief "What a haul you'd get by tackling me!" The rest is up to the thief, who seldom fails to respond.

Of course there is no defense to be made for crime. Neither is it possible to make a good defense of conduct that incites the crime. Even if no moral question is involved, there is the matter of common sense, and it should not be ignored.

PRESENT AS SPECTATORS

Representatives of the United States will be present at the Near Eastern conference at Lausanne, but only as observers. They will be invested with no authority, will have nothing to say, cannot hope to exercise an influence. Therefore the reason for their being there fails to stand out clearly. The affairs under consideration will concern this country, or will not. In the first case, the United States would seem entitled to a voice. In the second case it would seem bound, as a simple act of courtesy, to keep away.

The people of the United States do have interests in the Far East. They do have an intrinsic right to be consulted as to any conclusion that may affect these interests. Embarrassment has arisen from the avowed policy of aloofness. This country has been committed to such policy by the refusal of the senate to participate in the peace American blood had helped to purchase. Instead, it chose to make a separate peace, thus abrogating the informal sentiment previously expressed by statesmen and citizens alike. Now, in accordance with the position then taken, the influence of the United States, that logically, ought to be considerable, and might even dominate, is annulled. That the fact of annullment is regretted is evidenced by the tongue-tied delegates at Lausanne. True, they may report that which they see and hear, but, until a change of policy, nothing whatever could come of their version.

MAKING CHILDREN WELL

Let it be said in the beginning that the Orthopaedic Hospital-School for crippled children, needs funds. To this, add the statement that the benign institution mentioned has done and is doing marvelous work for the little ones handicapped by lameness and deformity. It is giving them a chance to walk erect, the opportunity to become men and women sound of body, capable of normal activity.

To aid in a work so useful and so unselfish seems a blessed privilige. Response to the call for aid is not merely the performance of a duty, for it also is a joy.

In the four years last past there has been an annual average of 3000 patients treated. This number will be increased probably to 4000 the current year. Enrolled in the clinic now are 900 children. Think of all that such beneficence means! Many who apparently had been condemned to life-long discomfort, and barred from making use of their full faculties, have been restored to complete health; no miracle, unless human kindness is to be deemed a miracle; unless the skill of the devoted doctor has risen to the plane of the miraculous. Great-hearted men and women seeking to brighten life for the unfortunate. But the hospital-school cannot be maintained as a going concern without financial support. So the management asks for such support. It is a pleasure to spread their request abroad. It is a pleasure to be able to extol the good work done, the generous kindness that has inspired it all.

The institution is in Los Angeles. The service it offers is for all of southern California. From over the whole wide area it has drawn its patient-pupils. Tnese have been sent away, perhaps fully healed. At least they have, at the worst, been benefited, and have known the environment of kindness and affection, and a great and gentle zeal, striving to restore them.

Austin O. Martin, of the First National bank of Los Angeles, is treasurer of the Orthopaedic Foundation, of which this admirable school is one visible expression. Money, or subscriptions in any form should be sent to him. And what a shower of these should follow the appeal now being made!

Take then, a lesson from weakness. Reflect upon the plea that reaches the senses in the spectacle of childhood with withered limb, that might be made whole, and distorted bones, that might be rendered sound and useful.

The Wirth cabinet in Germany has fallen, but the crash of its descent was not impressive. It sagged gently to a finish, so there was no upheaval, nor any great impact. Wirth may have been a man of amiable intentions, but in capacity as a leader he seems to have lacked every essential quality.

In the fiscal year that ended with June American investors had placed more than a billion dollars in foreign enterprises. This capital is engaged in the work of reconstruction in many parts of the world. The investors naturally were seeking returns, but regardless of this, their money has been a boon to Europe.

Doubtless the Wright law is more drastic in its terms than the public generally had realized. There seems no doubt that if applied rigidly it will put an end to illegal traffic in liquor. Neither the bootlegger nor his customer would dare the risk.

Foreigners representing the cause of a faction in a distant land are under arrest at Washington. They had chosen the capital as the place in which to stage their activities. That the choice was an exceedingly bad one is a truth that it is hoped may be impressed upon them.

The Difficulty of Help

By DR. FRANK CRANE

One of the hardest things in the world to do is to help anybody.

Most of us reflect with a tinge of bitterness over the attempts we have made to give this person and that a lift, and at the outcome of it.

Dr. Frank Crane

Even in the case of our children we are dismayed at how little good our advice seems to do and how little happiness our more material assistance appears to produce.

And, indeed, the commonest way in which we try to help anybody is by giving advice; needless to say it is about the most futile.

And there is a universal impulse when any one speaks of an ailment to recommend a remedy. Everybody has a favorite medicine or knows a remarkable physician, or perhaps has some infallible religious cult, all of which are sure cures and none of which we can get anybody to believe.

It is a wise man who learns early in life that pills are things for him to take himself and not to offer to other people.

And then so much of the helping in this world is done so clumsily that it does more harm than good. Yet the curious thing about it is that everybody thinks he could help a lot if he had the wherewithal, and that helping people is very easy.

The business man applies a lifetime of training and energy to the business of making a million dollars, and thinks he can give away a million dollars without any training or thought at all. The result is that his benevolence is, more often than not, distinctly harmful.

The fact is that the only perfect giver is God, and our giving is really helpful only as it is God-like. You can make a million dollars by working like the devil, but you cannot give it away except by working like God.

One of the things that spoils giving is intolerance.

"So very few," says a recent writer, "help the less fortunate on their way without cramming their own religion, or their own politics, or their own munificence down their throats at the same time. They cannot be kind for the sake of being kind; they cannot help others up without seeking to brand them at the same time with their own pet views and beliefs. And then they wonder why the poor will not be helped; why they are suspicious and ungrateful."

There is indeed no place where we more need tolerance and self control than in helping our fellow men. And there is no place where our selfishness, egotism, narrowness and prejudice are more out of place than when we set about being benevolent.

Hurting people is simple. We come by it naturally and anybody can do it. But to help people you have to be great, which is a whole lot harder than being good. For goodness is largely a matter of impulse. Greatness includes, not only impulse, but intelligence, and, most of all, humility, which perhaps is about the scarcest thing around the house.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

QUERIES

Punctuation

Phoebe Ryan: "'Will you kindly let me know which is the correct way to punctuate the following sentence: 'There are typewriters, are there not? that have better improvements?'"

Answer: Either the second is correct, or the following: Are there not typewriters that have better improvements?

"Don't"

A. H. Stretch: "Will you kindly send the undersigned a copy of the article which appeared in your 'Right Word' column sometime ago in regard to the use of 'don't'?"

Answer: Another article on this subject will appear in "The Right Word" soon.

"Me" or "I"?

S. J. Rametta: "Will you please be good enough to tell me which of the following sentences is correct: It will be better for Mr. Jones and me to talk this thing over; It will be better for Mr. Jones and I to talk this thing over?"

Answer: The right word is me, which together with Mr. Jones, is in the objective case because it is the subject of the infinitive to talk.

"Sicked"

L. E. Simmons: "To decide an argument, would you be kind enough to give your opinion on the spelling of the past tense of the verb 'sic', meaning to urge one person to pursue another. No doubt this is a very clumsy and incomplete definition, but not being able to find the word in Funk and Wagnalls New Standard Dictionary, I must resort to an original definition. The matter of spelling this word was really a very serious business, since it happened to occur in the dictation of important testimony, and the stenographer desired to use the proper spelling. With this object, she asked for suggestions, and received the following: 'sicke'; 'sicced'; 'sic'd'. All of these looked rather strange when written."

Answer: The right word is sicked (principal parts, sick, sicked, sicked). From the New Standard Dictionary: "sick, 1. To seek: used in the imperative to command a dog to attack; as, sick him, Towser! 2. (Colloq., U. S.) Hence, to set on; urge to attack; as, I'll sick the dog on you."

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

A friend of the editor of this Listening Post brought in a parable the other day.

And useful parables are good things to have.

Because they have an application to life.

And they may bring wisdom where it is needed.

* * *

Aside from the matter of health perhaps, we need nothing so much as wisdom.

For wisdom enables us to live happily and usefully.

And there is nothing better in life than happiness and usefulness.

Without them life is hollow and vain and to a great degree miserable.

The unhappiness and misery in the world are pitiable.

Because so much unhappiness and misery and all that are unnecessary.

They arise through lack of wisdom.

And where we can disseminate wisdom we can increase the sum of human happiness.

And the greatest man in the world is the man who adds most to the store of human happiness.

Great physicians have made distinct advances toward the conservation of health.

And the prevention of disease.

Great scientists have given us truths that have made life better and more comfortable.

Great preachers have uplifted the human spirit.

Great teachers have taught us purpose.

All of these things are parts of wisdom.

And add to the sum of human happiness.

The inventor of the electric light did his share.

So did the inventor of the washing machine.

And of the vacuum cleaner.

The cotton gin.

For human beings to be relieved of too laborious endeavor is a good thing.

If they do not squander the time saved in dissipation, idleness, vice and all that.

It is well perhaps that most of us have to be engaged a good share of the day to make a living.

Otherwise without wisdom we should surely get into mischief.

But to get back to the parable.

It was of the king who was dying.

And soothsayers and prophets said that only the shirt of a contented man could save him.

So couriers and others were sent forth to find a contented man and get his shirt.

And they sought long and in vain.

Until at last they found a man singing heartily in a field.

And his song was of contentment.

And his aspect was of contentment.

And they stopped and offered him riches and place and all that.

But he refused to accept them.

Declaring that he was content with his life as it was.

And would not change it.

* * *

So being satisfied that they had found a contented man they asked him for his shirt.

That the sick king might be made well.

And the man laughed at them.

Opened his rough jacket.

And declared he had never owned or worn a shirt.

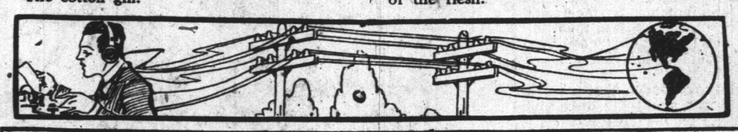
It's a pretty good parable.

Indicating that the possession of things does not necessarily bring contentment.

And that happiness is of the spirit and not of the flesh.



Songs of the Poets

Kathleen Mavourneen—By Louisa Macartney Crawford

Kathleen Mavourneen! the gray dawn is breaking,
The horn of the hunter is heard in the hill;
The lark from her light wing the bright dew is shaking—
Kathleen Mavourneen! what, slumbering still?
Oh, hast thou forgotten how soon we must sever?
Oh! hast thou forgotten the day we must part?
It may be for years, and it may be forever!
Oh, why art thou silent, thou voice of my heart?
Oh! why art thou silent, Kathleen Mavourneen?

Kathleen Mavourneen, awake from thy slumbers!
The blue mountains glow in the sun's golden light;
Ah, where is the spell that once hung on my numbers?
Arise in thy beauty, thou star of my night!
Mavourneen, Mavourneen, my sad tears are falling,
To think that from Erin and thee I must part!
It may be for years and it may be forever!
Then why art thou silent, thou voice of my heart?
Then why art thou silent, Kathleen Mavourneen?

USE OF RIGHT HAND CAME WITH METALS

Where did we get our right hands? Sarafin, eminent French archaeologist, has found that righthandedness suddenly developed when man began to use metals at the beginning of what is known as the bronze age. Up until that time, prehistoric man apparently used his left and right with equal proficiency.

These facts have been deduced from careful examination of the sharp-edged flint scrapers of early man found at Moustier. The position of the greatest wear on the edges of these implements shows which hand the worker used most. Throughout the stone ages man was ambidextrous, according to this evidence. But the wear on the instruments of the bronze period age points indisputably to the fact that then man began to rely largely on the right hand.

It is believed that this righthandedness may have arisen as a result of some religious idea which attributed baser significance to the left hand. Just as today popular superstition regards the left hand as emblematical of evil and the right hand indicative of good.

Orange groves in the dining room, for breakfast direct from tree to plate, and prospective brides raising their own orange blossoms in their own apartments while they fill their hope chests, are some of the possibilities foreseen in the introduction of the Chilean dwarf sweet orange into this country by the United States department of agriculture. This orange, called Capuchin, gives promise of being useful in the United States as a house plant as well as for dooryards and other places where an ornamental fruiting plant is desired.

It is believed that this small size juicy fruit tree which is being brought from the vicinity of Santiago de Chile, where it is extensively cultivated, must have originated in that section. The trees bear heavy crops of excellent thin-skinned oranges about two inches in diameter.

A new potato weevil invaded the fields of southern Mississippi unseen this spring and started doing damage before the farmerrs realized that their crops were being attacked. But this pest was soon identified, not in the fields, but in a laboratory at Washington.

Dr. L. O. Howard, chief of the United States of entomology, explains to the Lonisiana Entomological society that this new weevil was positively identified, its probable country of origin learned and past experience in its control was studied before field information was at all adequate. The collectors and systematists intent on classifying the insect gave the earliest practical information on the kind of warfare that should be waged against it.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

THE CABINET IN CONGRESS

[From Cotton]

President Harding has revived the suggestion that cabinet members be given seats and voices on the floors of the two houses of congress. It is an eminently good suggestion. If there is any of our citizens to whom it should appeal it is those who have had experience in directing or managing the affairs of corporations. * * * If cabinet members were required to attend certain sessions of congress they would be questioned publicly as to any matters relating to their departments. They could press their proposals on congress openly. A weak member of the cabinet inevitably would be showed up to the country; as it is he can escape by passing heavy burdens on to subordinates. The floors of congress again would take on a meaning that they long ago lost; for legislation no longer is shaped in the open forum but in committee rooms and lobbies and in byways unknown to the constitution.

Thus cabinet members on the floors of congress would mean much more to the legislative than to the executive department. The change might restore the house of representatives to some measure of the prestige it once possessed and to something like the dignity of the English house of commons.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The patience of the American public with lecturers from abroad is marvelous. There are instances, of course, in which the speaker is a man of scholarly attainment, his message timely and of value. Cases exactly the opposite are more common. English naturally are the worst offenders in this respect, for they speak the language of the country, even when strange to its spirit, and wholly uninformed as to its institutions and mental capacity.

Henry James

When the Asquith woman was here, her very presence was an affront. She was not on any account entitled to a hearing. Known in her own land as "the woman with a serpent's tongue" respectful treatment of her was an unmerited courtesy. She was the recipient of flattery, and departed with a fat purse, and flinging a final insult.

Literary men of no greater achievement, no wider knowledge than many Americans, arrive to expound the ignorance of their wild western audiences in New York or Boston. They regard themselves as superior beings, and doubtless they are superior to some who fawn about them. But they are bores. They bring nothing, for they have nothing to bring.

Just recently John Fortesque, president of the British Royal Historical society, has sought to elevate the intellectual standards of the United States by being among those present. He was to have addressed the cadets at West Point. The arrangement was interdicted by official authority. How he could have the nerve to address any body of Americans, or thrust himself into America at all, is so completely past understanding, that the subject may be dismissed.

The fact transpired that Fortesque, in a book, had grossly insulted Americans. He had said that in any competition with the British, athletic or diplomatic, they could not win without using foul play. "They must win," he wrote, "if not by fair skill, then by prearranged trickery and violence; if not by open negotiations, then by garbled maps and forged documents. There is the fact. It may be unpleasant, but it cannot be denied."

It can be denied. It is hereby denied. The impulse to call Fortesque a liar is suppressed, as suggesting an undignified course. But the impulse to say that he should be sent back as an undesirable alien is given free rein. He should not be tolerated.

Why should a man, evidently of standing, dig so stupid a falsehood out of the deeps of his ignorance? Perhaps because in every brain there is an idiotic area. But having done so, the crassness of his ineptitude is revealed when he visits the people traduced, expecting a hand of welcome.

California is a land of novelty. Just now it has a woman on trial for murder. Unhappily there is nothing novel in this fact. There generally is at least one woman on trial for murder, or being triumphantly acquitted despite her guilt. The novelty is that the female in the present case is neither young nor beautiful. And, as if this were not odd enough, the method ascribed to her is that of setting a pack of vicious dogs on the man killed.

"Cancer week" may be a fine and diverting period, but that there was any wisdom in scheduling it, hasn't been demonstrated. The probable effect will be to scare a lot of people into the notion that they have the disease. As doctors themselves are unaware of a remedy, and unable to name the cause, it might be well for them first to acquire knowledge concerning these points, and then impart it to the laiety.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

My young friend the real estate agent came in to see me this morning. He wastes time that way every now and then, for we have become mighty good friends. The boy's a wonder.

I was at home one night. I was in the dear old slippers, it was raining cats and dogs, our cat and dog were gurgling and steaming by the fire, and Mrs. Pilgrim was breaking in at the climax of each chapter of the detective story I was reading to tell me how much she wanted a new hat. The bell rang, I went to the door, and in came the young real estate agent.

"Mr. Pilgrim?" he asked.

"Yuh," said I.

"Mr. Pilgrim," said he, earnestly, "don't you want to buy this house and quit paying rent?"

So I told him I owned the house. Then he said he would sell it for me, and he almost talked me into it. He might have, if Mrs. Pilgrim hadn't interfered. The boy told me his plan. He had a job downtown, he said, and he wanted to get married, and he knew a good deal about the real estate business in general. Each evening he went from door to door in the residential section. It was no trick to get the name of the householder. Then he sprung the idea.

"Any business?" I asked.

"Some," said he. "Not a lot. But it pays."

I asked him to keep in touch with me, and he did. That is the test, I find. Every man you meet will tell you what he will keep in touch if you ask him, and one man in 900 will. The one man is worth looking into, as a rule. Either he actually wants something he thinks you have, or he is one of the extraordinary business men who believe that a word is meant to keep. He told me that he had actually been making some sales by his house to house scheme, for he understood how home buying is financed, which is more than the usual home buyer does.

"Come over here," I said one day, "and meet a friend of mine who has a chronic headache and a real estate business."

He met my friend and they are now business associates. He supports a better car than mine now, though he says he charges it it up to advertising, and his golf game is badly shot, because he has no time for it. My headachey friend says the only good turn I ever did him was when I brought the pair together. But I didn't do anything. It was that peddling houses from house to house that knocked the persimmons.

LAKE ARROWHEAD DEVELOPMENT IS SENSATIONAL

Manager Declares Sales Exceed Most Sanguine Expectations

Andrew Warmington, who has charge of the Lake Arrowhead sales, announced yesterday that the sales and interest in the Lake Arrowhead development was far exceeding the most sanguine expectations of the organization.

"The tremendous interest which is being displayed is attributed to the fact that never before have the people of Southern California had access to a great mountain recreational center throughout the entire year by motorcar," he said. "For in implanting and executing the great project, our first consideration was to make it possible to reach Lake Arrowhead through the winter months, for Californians need the diversity of climate which the four seasons bring and it is remarkable the response which our advertising campaign has found in the people for this idea.

"Our office at 206 Junior Orpheum building is continually engaged in answering questions and directing people to the lake. Many houses are being rushed to completion for the winter sports which will begin soon. Toboggans, skates, skiis, snowshoes, have appeared in the sporting goods stores of Los Angeles and it is quite an unique thought to notice displayed in these store windows the various implements of winter sports along side of the paraphernalia which is used by golfers and tennis players.

"It is true that the development of this great project which we have just completed, completely verifies the various chamber of commerce folders and multi-colored postal cards which have been sent east by the millions advertising California "from orange blossoms to snow fields.

"Californians have heretofore never had the opportunity of a change in 'season' and we have provided ways and means by which the owner of a home in Arrowhead Woods may enjoy the exhilirating activities of the mountains 'the year round.' With the trout fishing of spring and the usual aquatic and mountaineering sports offered by summer, the duck hunting of the autumn and the new pleasure of Southern California of winter sports and the old fashioned 'back east' fun and zest of winter. Those who know California and love our sunny climate, never would elect to live in the frozen, cold east again, and we who have severed the shackles of King Winter, will never return to that unpleasant condition. However, the recreation and pleasure which King Winter brought will never disappear from our consciousnesses and the thrill of the toboggan slide and the zip of the skil and the wonder and beauty of the snowshoe tramp through the silent forest, the keen exhiliration of ice skating and the happiness of long sleigh rides could never be forgotten, and now it is possible to leave Los Angeles and through the rose-bordered highways, strike out for the high mountain country of the San Bernardinos and within four hours of Los Angeles reach the snow-clad summits of the Southern Sierras, and for a day or a week revel in the choicest activities of a real old fashioned 'back east' winter. In Arrowhead Woods the sting has been removed from old King Winter's blast and only the beauty and joy remains and so in offering to the people of California an opportunity to own a home on the shores of this magnificent lake, we are giving an incomparable recreational center, open the year 'round to those of the Southland who love the great outdoors."

OFFICES IN NEW BUILDING ARE AVAILABLE

The Nesselroad building, 221-A West Broadway, one of the latest and best constructed buildings in Glendale, is rapidly nearing completion, and the professional men of the city are given the opportunity of securing one or more of the beautiful suites of offices in which the second floor of this building is divided.

The unrented part of this floor consists of 10 offices, suites of two rooms each, which are just the thing for the doctor, the lawyer, the dentist or similar professional men. All of these suites are types of excellence in design and finish, and the lighting features are superior to most of the offices found in Southern California.

Information concerning these offices may be secured at the butcher shop in the Nesselroad building.

Two venerable theologians were very friendly despite their differences in faith. One, the Episcopalian rector, was about seventy years old, and the minister of the Presbyterian church was slightly younger.

The rector was a good deal of a high churchman and always liked to be addressed as "father." Having become used to this title through years of conversation with his old friend, the Presbyterian minister used it several times in addressing a new rector, who in course of time succeeded the "father." But the young rector did not like this. More than once he asked the Presbyterian minister to omit the title, but in vain.

"See here, Dr. Smith," said the irate rector, one day, "for some time I have been asking you to stop calling me 'father.' If you do it again I shall call you 'mother,' and if after that you do it again I shall call you 'grandmother.'"

SUBDIVISION LAND IS OFFERED BUYERS

Opportunity, they say, knocks at every man's door once in a lifetime. In Southern California it is knocking all the time. There is one continuous opportunity rap—a constant tapping. Sometimes this tap comes in the form of a heavy thud.

This heavy thud is what might be termed the offer of acreage on San Fernando road and Glendale boulevard for subdivision purposes that is being made by Jack Thomas, owner, 634 Citizens' National Bank building.

Mr. Thomas has some of the finest pieces of property for subdivision that are to be found in this section of the country, according to his own declaration. And at the present time these pieces may be purchased at very fair prices, in many instances considerably below surrounding property.

These pieces will not last a great while, says Jack, and the person who wants to get in will have to hurry.

THESE FLOWERS BLOOM IN THE SPRING

California, the land of flowers, presents opportunity for beauty in the garden at all seasons of the year in a way that is equalled in very few parts of this "land of the free."

She has her winter flowers and summer flowers, all-year-round flowers and her flowering shrubs.

During the past weeks the gardens have been a blaze of flower color with asters, marigolds, zinnias, dahlias, chrysanthemums and others which all love.

These flowers were planted in the spring months and are already past or passing their prime.

The flowers that are to bloom during this winter and the following spring months should already be established in the ground, although there is still time to add them to the garden.

The soil for such gardens should be carefully prepared before the tiny plants are put into it, the first requisite being a well-drained plot with a warm and sunny exposure.

If the soil is naturally very heavy pains should be taken to make it as light as possible by the application of well decomposed vegetable matter, sometimes lime and sometime fine sand, depending upon the conditions at hand.

A heavy soil, particularly in shady places, tends to be damp and cold during winter months, a condition which will retard plant growth and which may even prove fatal to plant life.

Stagnant water and cold soil are disastrous to the garden. Good drainage is all important.

Before planting the small, flowering things the soil should be enriched by a generous application of well-rotted manure, deeply spaded into the ground.

Particular care should be taken to see that such applications are well rotted, for green manures are dangerous for the amateur to handle.

The time of flowering will depend upon the time when plants are set out, upon the warmth and nature of the winter, upon available plant food and upon the general care which the garden receives.

Early fall planting is preferable to late fall planting.

Pansies are in bloom now. Sweet peas, sown in August, will bloom by the Christmas season. January flowers may be had.

The spring months, up through May, are the season of greatest prodigality for flowering things that are planted now.

Dutch bulbs should be set out at once as stated in a previous article. California wild flowers should also be sown right away, as they are a natural product of our winter rains.

Annual flowers of the following varieties may be sown in the open ground for the winter garden: Aerocinium, alyssum, bartonia, calendula, candytuft, annual chrysanthemum, clarkia, collinsia, cosmos, eschscholtzia, godetia, larkspur, linum, lupinus, mignonette, nemohpila, poppies, sweet peas, pansies and stocks.

Plants of carnation, cineraria, calendula, candytuff, forget-me-not, lobelia, pansy, pinks, primula, petunia and verbena may be set out into the garden.

KNOW CONTRACTOR BEFORE BUILDING

Don't enter into a contract with any person for building your home until you have investigated his financial standing and the kind of work he has done in the past. Your banker or material dealer can tell you if his financial standing is satisfactory and you would do well to interview people for whom he has built houses, to find what class of work you may expect on your own job.

The only way to absolutely protect your interest in a building contract is to have the contractor obtain a surety bond from a reliable bonding company. Then if he should fail, for any reason, to make good his part of the agreement, you may recover from the insurer. Even this will not relieve you of trouble and delay if you deal with a dishonest contractor, so the first advice is best; investigate his work and standing thoroughly.

CONTRACT METHOD OF PLUMBING DEFENDED

This market is well stocked with plumbing fixtures, brass goods, and water heaters that are the output of well established and reputable manufacturers, and anyone can secure first class goods through the simple process of having them specified and refusing to pay the plumber if he installs anything inferior to what is specified.

As to the responsibility of the contracting plumbers of the city, it is naturally to be presumed that out of the many who are in business here, the same percentage of irresponsibles will be found as in the other branches of the building industry, and these irresponsibles are, in many cases, the ones who submit ridiculously low bids for work.

To the prospective builder or to one who is thinking of re-modeling his plumbing, the advice is given that at all times the safest and surest way to secure a first class installation of plumbing and water heating is by letting the contract directly to the plumber of his own choice, or to one who can furnish responsible references.

Have it destinctly written into the contract that the plumber is to furnish all labor and material to complete the job and assume all the responsibilities for the doing of the work.

Under a contract of this kind, if anything in the way of defective material is found in the work, the contracting plumber cannot fall back on the excuse that he did not furnish the material and is therefore not responsible for its quality, which he would be perfectly justified in doing if the owner had foolishly taken it upon himself to buy the material himself, as some owners do, much to their sorrow afterwards.

As the details connected with plumbing, water heating and gasfitting installations are in no wise understood, in a practical sense, by the ones who want such work done, except in very rare instances, it naturally follows that the best plan to pursue is for them to deal directly with those who are regularly established in that particular line of business.

RECORD CONTRACT AND BE SAFE

Recording the contract only establishes the terms and parties to the contract and cannot in any way release the property from the action of the lien law.

By recording the notice of completion, the date when all lien claims must be in, is established. This is thirty days for material men and labor claims and sixty for the original contractor.

NEW DEPARTMENT IS STARTED BY CLUB

An "intelligence department" for the use of all local and visiting motorists from the east has just been established by the touring bureaus of the Automobile Club of Southern California throughout this part of the state.

General questions pertaining to mootr car maintenance outside of mechanical difficulties will be answered by the new department of the Auto club, say the officials.

The intelligence bureau will be a sort of clearing house for the troubles of automobile owners, so any motorist who has a question to ask may now feel free to call the club and state his query.

If motorists wish to know the location of certain auto agencies, accessory establishments or business houses, they can just call the club's "intelligencers", in the touring bureau. All information on auto licenses, drivers' licenses and various laws in force in California will likewise be supplied the motoring public.

Thousands of visiting motorists are arriving from the east and north at this time and the "intelligence bureau" will prove of particular benefit to them, it is said. This information will be given out in connection with the regular road "dope" and other highway information.

In each county this service will be rendered for the community in the immeditae vicinity of the county office of the Auto club.

Reciprocity in Motor Licenses Suggested

Nation-wide reciprocity for motorists and the elimination of discriminatory war excise taxes against automobiles, trucks and automobile accessories will be the goal of the legislative activities of the American Automobile Association during the coming year according to plans outlined by M. O. Eldridge, executive chairman of the A. A. A., and adopted by the executive board at a meeting held in Washington this week.

He called attention to the difference in automobile laws of the various states, some of which permit a visiting motorist only thirty days within their borders without purchasing a new tag, while in others the period runs as high as six months.

"In my opinion," said Mr. Eldridge, "there should be a national law authorizing a motorist who has paid for his licenuse tags in his home state and has complied with the laws of that state, to motor anywhere in the United States without paying additional fees."

Here Is Timely Traffic Suggestion

Never overtake and pass another vehicle either too fast or too slow. If too fast, you may surprise other traffic or pedestrians, and find yourself on the wrong side of the road without your car under sufficient control. If too slow, you tend to block the road to other traffic by remaining unduly long on the left side, as well as often crowding over the vehicle you are passing.

DEATH RATE

from heart disease: White males, 3,153.5 per 100,000; white females, 2,910.4; colored males, 2,674.1; colored females, 2,662.1.

DEMONSTRATION IS WILLYS-KNIGHT FEATURE

In order to give the general public an idea of what is making the Willys-Knight so popular with the motor buyers and more especially the owners and drivers of that car, George T. Smith, local dealer with the Willys-Knight and Overland automobiles has, during the past week, with the assistance of the Willys-Overland Pacific company, been conducting a display of a working model of the Willys-Knight in which all of the operations of the motor are visible.

The demonstration has proven the contention of the Willys-Knight that the car "improves with use," and shows how carbon has been made the greatest aid to the motor in place of the usual loss of power as in the poppet valve motor. The booth also contained the latest models of the Willys-Knight including the new seven-passenger sedan with disc wheels.

R. L. Dell, personal representative of Barker Brothers, has just taken the delivery of a Willys-Knight, having previously owned a roadster. The ease of operation, the dependability of the automobile, together with the small cost of maintenance were instrumental in his purchase of the beautiful new coupe.

It is finished in the Willys-Knight blue body, with black fenders, hood and disc wheels. The upholstering it matched with the blue body.

The only regret Mr. Dell has is the fact that he was unable to keep the motor from his roadster, for he states himself that it has improved with use.

TRUCK DRIVERS A MENACE TO AUTOISTS

Motorists in this section of the state are in constant danger of accidents from careless truck drivers who fail to use rear-sight mirrors and make turns without looking behind, according to hundreds of complaints made to officials of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

In some instances, it is pointed out, truck and delivery-wagon drivers even fail to provide their vehicles with tail lights in good working order, evading the law in this respect on roads and streets where they think they will not be observed by traffic officers.

Officials of the Automobile club are calling the attention of traffic authorities to this practice in hope that steps may be taken to protect travelers on the highways and force the commercial vehicles to provide themselves with the ordinary safety devices as outlined in the state laws.

Complaints filed with the club say that in many cases the trucks are provided with something that answers the legal description of a mirror for seeing if the road is clear behind, but that these so-called mirrors are often so dirty that no human being could see a reflection in them.

Often truck drviers fail to give any signal at all when turning suddenly, and some testimony has been gathered which indicates that the drivers of heavy vehicles are unconcerned as to the welfare of the motoring public because they know that the weight of the truck will protect them in case another motorist runs into it.

Pink-cheeked boys who are entrusted as drivers of delivery wagons are the worst offenders in failing to give arm signals, say the complaints registered with the Auto club.

Roads to Sequoia Park Are Rough

Owing to construction of the state highway from Three Rivers to Hammond, the middle Fork road to the Sequoia National park is rough but entirely passable to Shepherd's Ford, just beyond Hammond. The ford may usually be used by autos until spring freshets, but may be impassable immediately after rain.

From Shepherd's Ford to the park gate the road is rough, but improves within the park to Hospital Rock. Distance from Three Rivers to Hospital Rock by this route, 14 miles. From Hospital Rock to Giant Forest by trail, 8 miles.

"Toeing In" of Wheels Makes Easy Steering

A car the front wheels of which "toe in" can be steered far easier and much safer than one in which the front wheels are perfectly straight or "toe out." The wheels of new cars invariably slant in a little for this tends to keep the car in the middle of the road, and this, in turn, permits the driver to keep the car moving in a straight line with little or no effort. But this slight slant should be watched carefully and checked up, as any alteration of it affects both the driving of the car and the wear on the tires.

PROTECT ALL CONNECTIONS

When taking the cars out on wet roads, see that all exposed connections are thoroughly lubricated. The splash of the water on these parts will cause rattling and undue wear and rust.

DURANT TO ENTER COMING RACE MEET

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 18.—Coincident with the arrival here of R. C. "Cliff" Durant, millionaire automobile magnate, the announcement was made that "Cliff" had entered the 250-mile championship automobile race to be held on the Beverly Hills Speedway Thanksgiving Day.

Durant is in Los Angeles and appeared on the speedway for the first time yesterday afternoon, driving the new Durant Special with which he heads the five-car Durant team, and roared through a practice spin over the board track at an almost amazing clip.

Cliff Durant's entry in the coming race here will create widespread interest in the event, it only for the scintillating career that follows him throughout his business, sporting and social life. Driving in the mad rush for speed only for the sport that he can get out of it, Durant has had a spectacular career in the racing sphere for several years past.

Fans who have followed the events on the Beverly Hills bowl since its opening in February, 1920, have seen him only once, when the car he was driving could not stand the racking speed and he was forced out early in the vent. Since that time he has had a varied career, winning, losing and breaking down before the finish.

OFFICERS ARREST ALLEGED THIEF OF GARAGE

Find Parts of Auto in Man's Pockets

Burbank police arrested an alleged garage thief in the railroad yards yesterday morning.

The man, who gave his name as Ross Auston, is wanted in Los Angeles, police here say. He broke into a garage in Los Angeles, and stole a considerable amount of accessories, it is believed.

Police found the man's pockets stuffed with autometers, it is said.

According to the police the man has a long prison record, and has served time at Whittier, Leavenworth, and the county jail.

TO REMEDY FARMER'S ILLS

"Merely putting a man on a piece of logged-off land does not in itself get us anywhere in solving agricultural problems, for if he goes broke, as many of them do, or struggles along making a bare existence, he is unable to pay his bills and becomes a 'knocker,'" says Dr. E. O. Holland, president of the State College of Washington, in a recent address at Everett to chamber of commerce delegates.

"Agriculture is ill, and needs every bit of nourishment that can be provided, including better support for the agricultural colleges. One remedy is more effective methods of cooperative buying and selling for the farmers."

Dr. S. B. Nelson, director of agricultural extension, said one influence hampering agricultural development in the northwest is the large importations of cheese, butter, eggs, mutton, wool and other farm products. He suggested as a means of combating some of the unfavorable influences, better preparation for farming, and said the work of the boys' and girls' clubs will put more efficiency into the next generation of farmers.

WHAT BIG DEBT WOULD BUY

The debt owed by 20 foreign nations to the United States would buy a moderate priced auto for every family in this country, and pay the "gas" and tire bills for most of a year besides.

THE TROLLEY CAR

was invented by Van Depoele and Sprague (Americans) in 1884 to 1887.

'NUTTY' DRIVERS INFEST THE HIGHWAYS

"Nutty" is the epithet applied to motorists who are stealing walnuts along the highways in this part of the state, in a hot complaint filed with the Automobile Club of Southern California.

And motorists in Southern California who are stopping their cars to pick nuts from the heavily laden trees are going to run up against the law in the future, promise irate ranchers, who declare that thousands of dollars' worth of walnuts are being stolen this season.

Not only are motorists stealing nuts, but they are getting away with oranges, avocados and grapes in large quantities, making a serious problem for local ranchers to face. Steps have been taken in certain sections of the state to stop this vandalism and fines ranging from $25 to $100 are being assessed against motorists who are caught in the act.

A warning to auto drivers has just been issued by the Automobile club in regard to this practice, stating that walnut growers and other ranchers are lying in wait for the persons who stop their cars to get a load of produce without paying for it.

The loss is mounting this year more than ever before. Patrols have been established among the walnut groves in many counties to protect the crop this year and these patrols will be maintained until the nuts have been harvested.

In Whittier, for instance, says the Auto club, Judge A. B. Taylor has started a drive against the motoring vandals and is planning to hand out justice in no uncertain terms, as he believes that the producers of foodstuffs should be protected to a greater degree than persons who can place their property under lock and key. The orchards are open to the world and must be protected, say Auto club officials here.

AUTO CAMPING IS HOMELIKE SAYS SMITH

Automobile camping should not be "roughing it," as is the case with many forms of living under more or less primitive conditions, sometimes called woods housekeeping, said Mr. Smith of the Chevrolet agency. "Indeed the auto camper may, and does, eat the same kind of food, cooked just as appetizingly and well, and having as wide a variety in daily diet, as he would enjoy at home. After having lived and eaten for five consecutive months beside our car, we have found that the nearer you stick to just what you would have on the table at home, the more enjoyable and successful will be your roadside housekeeping. Nothing sickens every member of the family quite so readily as does salted and smoked meats and fish day after day, tinned or powdered milk meal after meal, messy butter of great strength, dehydrated fruit and vegetables, and general hardtack.

"Indeed we now always have with us anywhere we autocamp the same fresh, crisp, perishable food—vitamines and all; real cow's milk, butter hard in a golden brick, fresh cut steak for broiling at a distant camp, fresh fruit, crisp vegetables and garden truck, cream, ice cream, ice cream pie, jam, jelly, mayonnaise, and so on down the list, just as if we were back home.

"In short, you have the same menu on your camp table as you do at home through the summer. At home you see an ice box, in camp you may have an ice basket."

Thirty-five Chevrolet cars were sold during the first 15 days in November, demonstrating that the motorists of Glendale and vicinity realize the dependability of the "Chev" both for city and mountain driving.

AUTO DEATH RATE IS ON RAPID INCREASE

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 18.—The department of commerce announces that the returns compiled by the bureau of the census show that during the year 1921, 10,168 deaths resulting from accidents caused by automobiles and other motor vehicles, excluding motorcycles, occurred within the death registration area of the United States (exclusive of Hawaii), which area contains 82 per cent of the total population. This number represents a death rate of 11.5 per 100,000 population, as against 10.4 in 1920, 9.4 in 1919, 9.3 in 1918 and 9 in 1917. Between 1917 and 1921, therefore, the death rate per 100,000 population from motor vehicle accidents and injuries increased about 28 per cent. In the 27 states for which data for 1917 are available the actual number of these deaths increased from 6014 in that year to 8492 in 1921, an increase of 41.2 per cent.

PROMINENT TRUCK MAN CHOOSES CHALMERS

Anders & Halfhill announce the delivery this week of a new Chalmers touring car to L. G. Gregory of Eagle Rock.

Mr. Gregory, who is a member of the firm of W. L. Gregory & Sons, is an expert in all matters pertaining to gasoline motors and automotive construction, of whatever type.

His requirements, using an automobile as he does to cover all of Southern California for business purposes, are very exacting. Almost an entire week was devoted to investigating and carefully comparing practically every medium-priced six-cylinder car sold in Los Angeles, before Mr. Gregory made his decision and placed his order for a new Chalmers Six.

"To a buyer who knows the language of automobiles," said Mr. Gregory, "the Chalmers speaks for itself."

The chief said this morning that he has a large listing of Glendale property and would be glad to hear from those interested in securing land or a home here.

During the owner's enforced sojourn in a hospital, the burglar drove up to this fashionable Kurfurstendamm office with a moving truck, loaded the office furniture in and drove away. He told the building superintendent that he had been instructed by the owner to move the furniture to another building. The furniture was valued at a couple of million marks.

STATE SONS OF REVOLUTION ARE MANY

For the fifth year the Sons of the Revolution in California is maintaining the lead throughout the United States as to increase in new members.

Word just received from the New York society, the largest in the United States, shows that they are admitting practically as many as California. Pennsylvania society we have the edge on by half a dozen, but they inform us that this coming month they expect to admit nearly fifty members that are already lined up. West Virginia society, which two years ago awoke to vigorous action, is the only society that threatens to be a serious competitor for California, as they are within one of as many as we, so far this year. The Daughters of the American Revolution are helping them get their new members, which accounts for their phenomenal growth. They are making every effort to outdistance not only the big Eastern societies, but California as well, which has maintained the lead for the past four years, last year beating New York society by a margin of just six new members.

The race is keen! The interest is growing! California has a harder fight this year than ever before. California can win, and will! To do this, those who have been planning to join should do so at once. California can not afford to lose to any other state. It won't! But immediate action is needed by every eligible man who can qualify. And California has a great many of the right sort. The Daughters of the American Revolution can help California remain at the top, if they but will!"

Information will be supplied and help will be given those trying to join if they will communicate with headquarters, 424 South Broadway, Los Angeles. Keep California at the top, where it has been for four years! Everyone helping makes it easy.

PIERSON W. BANNING,
Vice-President.

Forests and Business

BY
CHARLES H. SHINN
Forest Examiner

An article which goes right home to every one in California appears in the current issue of American Forestry. It is written by Mr. George H. Rhodes, who is at present the secretary of the California Forest Protection Association. He discusses the length of time necessary to grow a timber crop and the consequent adjustment of economic conditions required. He tells us for instance that if sixty billion board feet of lumber are needed every year, it means that four million acres must be cut. If we wish to wait a hundred years to cut this land over we must plan to keep not less than four hundred million acres constantly in growing timber. That simply represents the least practicable forest rotation period.

The farmer, comparing this with the time and the areas needed for his annual barley crop, his short period rotation of alfalfa, or vineyard or fig orchard, can see at once that the ultimate consumer must carry the costs. Tree growing for timber is not a matter of sentiment but of business.

In other words, scientific forestry and scientific lumbering are in perfect unity on this point—that "every item of cost necessary to the growth of timber must be taken into consideration as accurately as possible." In all private forestry this means, of course, taxes and interest. But, as Mr. Rhodes tells us, forest renewal is easier in connection with a permanent manufacturing plant. He then discusses the problem of a yield-tax upon all timber lands within private or owned by the state. His article is certain to attract much attention.

STRAW LOFT POULTRY HOUSE

The straw loft in the poultry house makes it warmer in winter and cooler in summer, according to R. V. Mitchell, head of the poultry department at the State College of Washington, in his "Poultry Notes No. 9," which is now ready for distribution on request. The straw acts as an insulator, keeping out heat or cold and making the house more liyable for the birds, and reducing the cost of litter and labor in their care. Tests show as much as 17 degrees difference in temperature between houses with and without the straw loft. The straw also acts as a safeguard against such diseases as develop in damp, poorly ventilated houses. It can be installed without much expense, and helps in economy of egg production.

WILL STUDY SULPHUR

The government has assigned Dr. L. L. Erdman, expert chemist at Iowa State College, Ames, to an investigation of elemental sulfur as a plant food now being carried on in the laboratories of the experiment station at the State College of Washington. His work begins November 1, and continues until a newly created research fellowship is filled. This fellowship has just been granted by the Sulfur Committee of the National Research Council, to the division of chemistry at the State College which has already done notable work on gypsum as a fertilizer for alfalfa. Prof. George Olson, former head of the division, and Dr. J. L. St. John, present head, have issued a bulletin on "An investigation of Sulfur as a Plant Food."

USE OIL FOR TIMER

Grease should never be used for commutator or timer lubrication. Cylinder oil is the proper lubricant for these parts, and should be used only sparingly. This is applied to all commutators or ignition distributors. When grease is used here it frequently serves to prevent the commutator arm from making contact.

HOW FAR TO NEXT 'EATS'? SEE AUTO CLUB SIGNS; THEY'RE STRICTLY NEW

Auto road signs that carry information as to mileage will be the latest improvement in road marking to be taken up by the Auto Club of Southern California.

While the highways of Southern California were in an unsettled condition as to their general routes it was impossible to place the mileage notice on the signs because there were so many road changes.

Motorists will find that it will be a material help to them in traveling about this part of the state to learn just how far it is to the next "eats" or the next place where gasoline may be obtained.

A vast amount of labor is involved in this arrangement of the road signs, but hard labor is one of the best things attributed to the Auto club, and so the winter months will find the new signs blossoming out on hundreds of miles of permanent highways.

The man in the picture is "Doug" Rhodes, who has charge of placing all the new signs.

ROYALTY'S FITTING FOLLOW ITS KING

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—Royal art and furnishings of the last king of Wuerttenberg have been sold under the hammer.

The furniture, sculpture and art treasures belonging to the royal palaces at Stuttgart brought 15,705,500 marks.

Foreign buyers outbid local dealers and private buyers, bidding far above the estimated figures for most of the treasured art pieces put up.

The auction took place in the main reception room of the Rosenstein castle where for years only royalty and a few accepted guests were admitted.

The painting "Abraham's Entrance into the Promised Land" by Dietrich went at 150,000 marks; Correggio's "Susanna in the Bath," for 550,000; Ehrhardt's "Laban and His Daughter," and "Jacob and Rebecca at the Well," went for 400,000 each.

MILK AS FAMILY FOOD

"The nation using sufficient milk will be a robust, healthy and productive people," says Leila W. Hunt, head of the department of foods and nutrition at the State College of Washington home economics division.

She instances as proof the small stature, short life, high rate of infant morality, the lack of ambition to better the achievements of their forefathers, of Chinese, Japanese, and other people of a largely vegeterian habit.

Milk from the average cow has the following composition: Water, 87 per cent; casein and albumen, 3.3 per cent; fat, 4 per cent; milk, sugar, 5 per cent; mineral matter, 7 per cent; vitamines, which cannot be measured.

"Most people think of milk as only a beverage, rather than as an important article of diet of high food value," says Miss Hunt. "It might be used as the sole source of our food supply, and in case of sickness is one of our most important foods.

"Milk is a much cheaper fuel food than meat. Truly one can purchase twice as many fuel units in milk as in meat for the same money. Children need this fuel to keep their bodies warm and to help them run, play and work. They are so active that they need more fuel in proportion to their size than grown people."

"Sir, I have come to demand the hand of your daughter," said the young man.

"Demand!" exclaimed the father. "What do you mean?"

"Her hand, sir, the price of my silence," was the reply. The father was beside himself with anger and started to call a policeman when the young man intervened: "One moment, sir. I know nothing of your affairs and I do not for a moment imagine that you have been guilty of any wrongdoing. The silence to which I allude is of another sort. I am the young man who practices on the cornet in the boarding house next door."

"Ah," exclaimed the father. "Take her, my boy, take her."

A young man had to go abroad and before he went he was saying goodby to his sweetheart.

"Darling," he said, "when I am far away will you gaze on that star every night and think of me?"

"Dearest, I will," she answered. "That star is so full of your nature that it will always remind me most wonderfully of you."

"Why is that?" asked the young man.

"Because it is out so very late at night and looks so pale in the morning."

At the Theatres

AT THE GLENDALE

The current vaudeville road show which plays this popular theater on Saturday next is headed by Harry Coleman and his walking dolls, and Cully & Clare, "Just a Bit Different." Harry Coleman's latest offering for vaudeville is cramed with novel and different ideas, his oddity should prove a solid hit on this bill. Cully & Clare, "Just a Bit Different," brings a clever pair of artists in an offering that is snappy and tuneful. Mr. Cully's solo work is especially bright. Billy Smith, "A Bit of Everything," whose comedy is made possible by the assistance of a piano, and Mattus & Young, "The Wee Couple" will add materially to the quality of this bill. Hal Hart, the versatile entertainer, rounds out a well balanced and pleasing bill of high class vaudeville.

"The Hunch," a George D. Baker production for S-L (Arthur Sawyer and Herbert Lubin) released by Metro with Gareth Hughes as star, which will be seen at the Glendale theater tonight, is the first photoplay by Percival Wilde. It appeared originally as a short story in the Popular Magazine.

Sunday's Program

The tearing, clawing, battling Priscilla Dean, the Priscilla that you loved in "The Wildcat of Paris" and "The Virgin of Stamboul," is coming to the Glendale theater from Sunday to Thursday in the greatest triumph of her career—a picturized version of Ouida's "Under Two Flags."

As Cigarette, daughter of the regiment, she gives a characterization to the screen that is truly described as "a masterpiece." The passion, selfishness, jealousy, love and hatred that marked the life of Ouida's famous character of the desert is portrayed by the inimitable Priscilla in a series of realistic scenes that makes one forget he is watching a picture. You love and hate with her, and at the end you leave marveling at the ability of this favorite of the screen. She wins you through real merit.

No one ever doubled for Priscilla Dean, one one could. In all her big scenes she is so close to the camera that every expression of her face is plainly discernible. An excellent cast supports Miss Dean.

AT THE T. D. & L.

Sherlock Holmes, Dr. Watson, the the Flaming Hound, the Baskervilles and all the other famous old characters created by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle will appear on the screen of the T. D. and L. theatre for the last time today when "The Hound of the Baskervilles" is given its final showings. This production comes direct from the Capitol theatre, New York, where it thrilled and entertained thousands of exacting theater-goers.

Sunday's Program

The eternal battle of the sexes, raging from the very dawn of the human race, is the theme of Daniel Carson Goodman's powrefully dramatic and prophetic photoplay, "What's Wrong With the Women?" which opens its engagement of two days at the T. D. and L. theater tomorrow.

Woman, according to the view of Mr. Goodman, long noted as a writer and producer of plays for the stage and screen, has realized that if she is to hold her own in this, one of life's greatest battles—the battle of her own sex—she must borrow from the weapons of experience.

That is why, Mr. Goodman shows in bold and powerful strokes, she does not disdain the rouge pot, the powder puff, the pencil, the art of the manicurist, and the subtlety of the dressmakers.

In addition to "What's Wrong With the Women?" an attraction of much interest will be presented. It is "Chinatown After Midnight" with Capt. Lewis, famous guide in person in lecture. A real genuine, true blue show from start to finish.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hamman of 332 Ivy street left Tuesday morning to make their home in Dallas, Texas. Mr. Hamman was formerly manager of the F. A. Clarke electric shop in Glendale.

ON THE ROAD

"Where lies the town of Happiness,"
Cried the youth to the wrinkled sage,
As they meet one day on the weary way
That lies 'twixt Youth and Age.
The gray haired wise man shook his head:
"'Tis a little farther on," he said.

"Where lies the town of Happiness,
I pray we reach it soon,"
For, risen high in the molten sky
Was the sun that marked Life's noon.
But again the wise man shook his head:
"'Tis a little farther on," he said.

"Where lies the town of Happiness?"
The youth was old and gray,
With shoulders bent, and eyes intent,
Where the road stretched forth, away.
The wise man sadly shook his head,
"'Tis a little farther on," he said.

"Where lies the town of Happiness?"
Down, down in the dust he fell,
His voice was shrill and the death films fill
His eyes. Mused the Sage: "'Tis well."
And there gleamed in his eye a tear unshed
"For me 'tis farther on," he said.

DON'T GROWL—GROW!

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Handicaps of Childhood," Etc.

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers)

One of the most unpleasant yet pathetic of figures is the man who is forever growling, carping and inveighing against life in general and its circumstances as they affect him in particular.

To this type of man everything is badly ordered. The wealthy, without exception, owe their wealth to crookedness and graft. Employers are a set of money-grubbers, the natural enemies of the employed, whom they would, if they could, keep on starvation wages. Those of the employed who contrive to prosper are little better than the grasping employers. For, as the man of perpetual growl and complaint sees it, they could not possibly have prospered in this most miserable of worlds if they, too, had not stooped to trickery and deceit.

Men thus believing and affirming are, not without reason, regarded by all right-thinking people as exceedingly dangerous members of society.

They are dispensers of moral poison, sowers of class hatreds, underminers of the foundations on which alone can rest a stable social structure. Happily the right-thinking so far outnumber them that the injury their bitter complaining does is mostly confined to themselves.

And how seriously it injures them! How heavily they are handicapped by it in the successful management of their own lives!

If only because their minds are intent on stirring up trouble, they are mentally under-energized as regards whatever work they engage in for livelihood-earning purposes. Still further are they de-energized by the very character of their dominant modes of thought.

Chronic bitterness of spirit inevitably means a weakening of the whole organism. This is one of the most certain of psychophysical facts. It prevents the mental and moral activity and growth without which there can be no progress. It shrivels and it enfeebles.

Consequently all permitting themselves to be enslaved by bitterness become more and more incapable of effective thinking and doing. This of itself would be enough to make them business failures, quite apart from the natural reluctance of others to have about them surly, grumbling, ill-disposed persons whose great aim seems to be mischief-making.

Which is why I began by describing the chronic growler and complainer as not merely an unpleasant but a pathetic figure. He is indeed a tragic figure. For unless he ceases his growling, unless he desists from his habitual complaining and attains a wholesome attitude that permits mental growth he is fated to an increasing misery year after year. The sad experiences of many generations of fault-finders extraordinary bear out the truth of this.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN

"I wish I knew," said a school boy whose name was Ted, "how doctors can tell whether a fellow's ankle is broken or sprained by just looking at it. I think I'd like to be a doctor."

"No you wouldn't. Too much hard work about it," said the older brother, scathingly. "Bill's uncle, he's a doctor, and he went to college for years and years, and read hundreds of books and he knows all the human bones by heart, in English and Latin."

Ted's father, glancing up from his book, said kindly, "Why are you particularly interested in sprains and fractures, tonight, son? Last night it was Babe Ruth and baseball, I thought."

Ted flushed.

"I know, Dad, but tonight I do think I'd like to be a doctor when I grow up. This afternoon one of the boys at school fell off the sidesidewalk, and he tried to walk and he couldn't. The pain in his ankle was awful. There was a young man passing, and he said, "I'm a doctor. What's the matter?"

"He just took one look at the ankle, that we all thought was broken, and he said, 'It's only sprained. Don't worry.' But how did he know?"

"That is his business son, the reason that he studied for years, and will keep on studying, as long as he is a doctor. I know quite a lot about such things myself. I never told you that once I wanted to be a doctor, did I?"

Ted's father twinkled his eyes and put down his book, as he continued:

"Accidents will happen, you know. When a man gets into out of the way places, it's a good thing to know what to do for his fellow man if things go wrong.

"A good many accidents are caused by carelessness. In crowded streets, especially, one must be always on the alert.

"Bruises, sprains, strains, dislocations and fractures are all injuries in which the skin is not broken.

"A bruise, generally caused by a fall or a blow, is known by the rapid discoloration of the skin, pain, tenderness and swelling. Slight bruises require no treatment. In more severe bruises one must aim to decrease pain and limit swelling by applying very hot or very cold cloths.

"Strains, or the overstretching of a muscle, are caused by wrenches, or lifting too heavy a weight. There is pain on movement of the strained part, stiffness and more or less swelling. Absolute rest, applications of witch hazel or arnica and gentle massage is the home treatment for a strain. If it is severe one should always send for a doctor."

The boys were listening intently, with a new respect for their father's wisdom.

"And dislocations," he said, "are injuries of the joints. The head of the bone slips out of the socket. Sometimes the ligaments which bind the joint are torn. This is very painful. There is always deformity with a dislocation, never with a sprain. This is one reason why it is easy to tell one from the other. There is also pain and swelling in a dislocation, and the patient often suffers from shock.

"Except to apply very hot or cold water to the injury there is nothing to do but keep the person still and send for a doctor. If you like, I'll tell you some more tomorrow," promised Ted's father.

PROPER CABBAGE PITTING

"Housewives often remark in spring that cabbage is dry and unpalatable, that it is not so crisp and juicy as when fresh from the garden," says Chester L. Vincent, horticulturist at the State College of Washington.

"This drynes in cabbage can be prevented by proper pitting of the neads in fall. There are various ways. One of the commonest is to open up a trench in the fall 1 1-2 to 2 feet wide, according to the number of heads to go on the bottom layer, on a well drained slope with a sandy or gravelly soil. The width of the trench will depend somewhat on the size of the heads and the number to be stored. If two heads are to go side by side 1½ feet will be sufficient; if three, four or more, it must be wider. The depth will vary from 6 in. to a foot, according to the size of the heads.

"The cabbages are pulled roots and all, and placed head down in the trench without removing outer leaves. After the bottom of the trench is full, the next layer must be so laid that the heads will fit between the stalks and roots of the bottom layer. If, for example, the bottom layer is four heads wide, then the second row will be three heads; or if the bottom row is but two heads wide, the top will have but one.

"After packing the heads together in this fashion, put a covering of burlap or a thin layer of straw over the plants in the trench to protect from the layer of dirt which is to be put on next. Only sufficient soil to protect the plants from severe freezing should be put on at this time. After severe winter weather sets in, enough manure or straw should be added to prevent much freezing or alternate freezing and thawing. This will also permit the removal of the heads through the winter as the market or home use demands.

"By late spring the outside leaves will have rotted somewhat, but this in no way affects the flavor of the cabbage. After removing these outer leaves you will have a beautifully bleached head of crisp, juicy cabbage, of much higher quality than heads simply stored in a dry cellar or basement where no attention is paid to the humidity of the air.

"If only a few heads are to be stored for your own use, I suggest cutting the heads from the stems and wrapping them first in the large outer leaves and then in paper, and packing them between layers of sand in a barrel or boxes. The sand should be kept moist but not wet. Keep the barrel in a cool cellar."

Mrs. R. K. Snow of 609 North Maryland avenue, assisted by Mrs. W. L. Andrews, is hostess this afternoon to the members of the drama section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club, of which Mrs. R. E. Chase is curator. The reading of the "Importance of Being Earnest" will be taken up.
